QUEER CAVALRY CHARGE.

Attack Upon a Stranded Gunboat by a Mounted Squad.

After the action at Sabine Crossroads (in April, 1864), the Lexington was leading the fleet on the way down the Red river. A rifle fire was directed upon her decks from the Confederate skirmishers on the shore. At one point the river widened out and the channel meandered through an open stretch of comparatively shallow water. As the Lexington reached this open stretch the man at the wheel, who had been replaced once or twice during the trip, was struck by a well directed shot from the bank. The little vessel turned sideways to the current and grounded bow and stern across the narrow channel. A squad of Confederate cavalry, led by General Green and ex-Governor Mouton, seized the opportunity for a brilliant coup. They rode out through the shallows, the water being up to the shoulders of their horses, keeping up such a sharp fire that the decks of the gunboat had to be abandoned. The cavalry reached the edge of the channel, and it seemed for a moment as if they would be able to get on board and take possession of the vessel. If their attempt had been successful the vessel would have been sunk where she lay and the channel would have been blocked. The next vessel in the column was still above the point waiting until by the movement of the smoke from the stacks of the Lexington it could be known that the channel was clear. The men on the gunboat finally succeeded in bringing to bear a gun from below, and a volley of shrapnel killed General Green. Discouraged by the death of their leader, the cavalry turned back to the bank. The Yankee gunners again took possession of the deck and the wheelhouse, and, getting out their stilts (long poles fastened by swinging bolts to the side of the vessel), they succeeded, although still under a sharp fire, in pushing the bows of the vessel around and getting her again under way.—American Review of Reviews.

TECUMSEH'S MISSING BUST.

The Reason It Was Taken From Its Niche in the Capitol.

"Where is the bust of Tecumseh that used to be in a niche on the senate side of the capitol?" Richard Livingston, a student of American history, asked recently.

"I know that years ago there was a fine bronze bust of an Indian, and the name Tecumseh was on the pedestal, and as Tecumseh was about the most famous Indian chief of our school history books every American boy took more interest in surveying his features than in looking over the faces of eminent white men in the big building. I walked all over the building and saw Indians enough in paintings and statuary, also some live ones, but no Tecumseh. Then I hunted up my congressman, and he went through a guidebook—no use. Then we questioned the guides. They had not heard of a Tecumseh bust, and most and saw Indians enough in paintings and statuary, also some live ones, but no Tecumseh. Then I hunted up my congressman, and he went through a guidebook—no use. Then we questioned the guides. They had not heard of a Tecumseh bust, and most of them asked, 'What state was the senator from?'

'I was about to give it up. Then a somber sort of chap with a silk hat and a red flower in his buttonhole relieved my anxiety. He explained what I had not thought of before, and that was the fact that Tecumseh was killed in battle wearing the uniform of a British general. He died fighting the American flag. Why should he be honored with a bust in the capitol?'

'And then I was told that the Tecumseh bust really had been in the capitol for many years until one day a wise senator, familiar with the history of his country, made a protest. That sent the Tecumseh bust to the cellar or to some museum here in town.'—Washington Post

The Bull of Phalaris.

Perillus of Athens is said by the ancient authorities to have invented for Phalaris, tyrant of Agrigentum, B.C. 570, a brazen bull which opened on the side to admit victims who were to be roasted to death by the fire which was built underneath. The dying groans of the sufferers closely resembled the "roaring of a maddened bull;" hence the name that was given to the invention. It is refreshing to know that later on the populace rose against Phalaris and burned the tyrant in the bull that he had made to be the cause of death to so many others.—New York American.

A Roundabout River.

The Kentucky river at Jackson is a freak. It runs for five miles or more to advance sixty feet. The circuit of the water forms what is known as the "panhandle." Standing on the backbone you can flip a stone into the river on the north side and one into the river on the south side, five miles below. You are on the north side of the river and on the south side of the river and going up the river and down the river at the same time.—Winchester News.

seriously injured. His right leg was broken and his head cut.

P. W. Thompson, general merchant of Yarker, has made an assignment to N. L. Martin, assignee, Toronto, for the benefit of his creditors, who are principally Toronto houses. A meeting of the creditors has been called for the 15th, when a statement of the affairs of the firm will be presented.

Great sorrow has been felt at Tamworth since it was learned that A. M. Smale had bought a drug business at Warkworth, and that he and his gifted wife were about to leave. A number of friends gathered at the residence of James Donevan to bid them good-bye and present them with an address and a purse.

Three by-laws were carried at Owen Sound on Saturday by large majorities. The first is to lend the Knitting Company $15,000 for twenty years; the second, to lend $25,000 to parties connected with the Adams Furniture Company of Toronto, and the third to lend C. S. Lloyd and Co., Toronto, $25,000, all to erect new factories in the town, Parliament will adjourn, as previously intimated, not later than May 23rd, and reassemble for the concluding portion of the session not earlier than July 18th. The arrangement to that effect, concluded by Sir Wilfred Laurier and Mr. R. L. Borden during their recent conference, was confirmed by formal announcement in the Commons on Wednesday.

Canada's customs collections for the month of April total $5,600,124.58, and port deposits of March collections, $678,078.57, a total revenue of $6,387,203.15. This is upwards of half a million greater than in corresponding period last year, when the total revenue was $6,021,178.10, made up of April collections' $5,054,707.76, and port deposits of March collections, $969,410.34.

In future all claims for fire losses must be paid within sixty days of the filing of proofs of loss. Such was the decision of the special committee appointed by the Ontario Legislature at the recent session to deal with the bill brought in by Col. Hugh Clark (Centre Bruce,) at a meeting held at the Parliament buildings. In the case of stock companies interest will run for fifteen days. This provision was made because the mutual companies must have time to meet the directors and to pay the assessors of losses.

The steamer Aletha, of the Bay of Quinte Navigation company, which ran ashore on the rocks at Navy Bay, was released on Saturday afternoon. Quite a little difficulty was experienced in getting her off. A heavy sea was rolling at the time she went ashore, consequently she was driven hard on the rocks, and being a light boat, drove far up on the shore. The water when comparatively calm, is very shallow, at this place, and the tugs of the Donnelly Wrecking company could not get near her. On Saturday, the tug Frontenac, of the Calvin company's fleet assisted the tug Saginaw, and the two boats succeeded in pulling her off. The steamer Aberdeen came down from Picton Sunday afternoon and towed her back there, where she will undergo a thorough examination and overhauling in Hepburn's ways. It is expected that she will be in commission again in a week's time. One thing was exceedingly fortunate, and that was the fact that her hull, which was rebuilt of oak last winter, was sufficiently strong to stand the strain of two powerful tugs pulling at her without going to pieces.

A GOOD MEDICINE FOR THE SPRING

Do Not Use Harsh Purgatives—
Tonic is All You Need

Not exactly sick—but not feeling quite well. That's the way most people feel in the spring. Easily tired, appetite fickle, sometimes headaches and a feeling of depression. Pimples or eruptions may appear on the skin, or there may be twinges of rheumatism or neuralgia. Any of these indicate that the blood is out of order; that the indoor life of winter has left its mark upon you and may easily develop into more serious trouble.

Don't dose yourself with purgatives as so many people do in the hope that you can put your blood right. Purgatives gallop through the system and weaken instead of giving strength. Any doctor will tell you this is true. What you need in the spring is a tonic that will make new blood and build up the nerves. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the only medicine that can do this speedily, safely and surely. Every dose of this medicine helps to make new blood, which clears the skin, strengthens the appetite, and makes tired, depressed men, women and children bright, active and strong. Mr. B. Martin, Deux Rivieres, Que., says: "About a year ago I was all run down. I was pale, weak, and had but little appetite. I also suffered from a severe pain in the back, and though I tried several medicines nothing helped me until I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and these soon fully restored my health. I can strongly recommend these pills to every weak person."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BY CONTRARIES.

An old Irish gardener, meeting his master, after the prolonged absence of the latter from the estate, touched his finger to the tip of his cap, and said:

"Good morning, yer honor. Glad am I to see ye. Oi had a fine dram o' ye last night."

"Indeed, Michael!" remarked the employer. "What was the dream?"

"Oi dramed that ye gave me a fine box o' tobacco, an' that her ladyship, yer honored wife, gave me humble Biddy a little caddy o' th' best tay."

"Ah, Michael, but you know dreams always go by contraries."

"Then," said Michael, "maybe ye'll be after givin' me wife th' tobacco, an' her ladyship'll give me th' tay."

FORTUNE FAVORS THE BRAVE, OR, A LOOK INTO THE PAST

Mr. Crawshaw jerked his head in the direction of Nancy, and then, with an evil look in his black eyes he turned and lounged towards the girl just as Mrs. Fairfax glided up to Derry's side.

"Here you are at last," she said, with a sigh of relief; "where have you been to? Oh, there is Miss Hamilton, also. Shall we join them?"

"I prefer to remain here, if you have no objection."

To all appearances Mr. Darnley was only very languid, very tired, and rather dull.

"I am delighted—delighted!" cried Mrs. Fairfax, with enthusiasm, and speaking the honest truth. "I have been dying for some congenial society all the day."

"Scarcely flattering to my cousin and her guests."

He was smiling, but his ears were listening for those tones once again. She was surely very silent. He did not dare look, for if he did it meant fresh torture.

"Oh, you know what I mean," cried Mrs. Fairfax, setting herself in a luxurious chair and glancing up at him coquettishly, feeling that her complexion must look well in the moonlight; then her smile went, and she frowned.

"Oh, they are coming to disturb us, just when we are so comfortable! How grave they all look!" She leaned back in the chair and unfurled her fan. "Are you discussing state secrets, you four young people? How silent you are!"

They, none of them, answered her, though Miss Chester evinced a desire to giggle, which she managed to check with difficulty.

As they reached the steps Dorothy turned to Crawshaw.

"You must forgive me, Mr. Crawshaw, if I spoke rudely to you," she said, coldly, drawing Nancy's trembling hand through her arm; "but please understand that Miss Hamilton is my dearest friend, and I resent an insult to her as I should resent an insult to myself."

Mrs. Fairfax shut her fan and sat bolt upright. This was going to be amusing with a vengeance!

Derrick Darnley only leaned still closer against the marble pillar; his face had grown curiously set and stiff, and his eyes were fastened on that slender, shrinking form before him.

Acting or no, there was such a look of pain and anguish written visibly on her white cheeks and quivering lips, that it awoke his pity.

Crawshaw smiled almost insolently.

"You are young and hasty, Miss Leicester, and so I will pass it over this time," he observed. "Wait," he added, as Dorothy drew herself forward.

As she was unmerciful in her strength, so he would show her he beasts of the field—a man without heart or honor.

She dimly felt that Darnley was near her, and, unconsciously, this gave her strength, she let her eyes meet Dorothy's, and her pale lips opened.

"I can't deny it, dear," she said, quietly, "for—for it is true."

"You—you are not going to marry this—"

"Oh, don't mind me!" sneered Crawshaw, as Dorothy's voice broke. "You don't seem pleased at Miss Hamilton having chosen me, Miss Leicester."

"Pleased!"—Dorothy forgot everything, her duty as hostess, the ordinary conventionalities of society, everything but this hideous fact—that Nancy, her dear, true Nancy, was about to give herself to such a brute as Thomas Crawshaw. "I cannot—will not believe it!"—tears were coming to her eyes, and a lump rose in her throat. "Nancy, you must be mad! What has come to you, darling—don't we make you happy—do you want to leave me? No, no, it is only a joke, or—" Dorothy turned suddenly to Crawshaw—"or, if it is true, you have made her promise by some unfair means. Yes, yes, I feel it; I know it. She would never have done this of her own free will!"

Crawshaw's face darkened.

"I thank you for your good opinion of me, Miss Leicester!" he said, savagely; then he put his hand on Nancy's shoulder. "Speak out!" he muttered. "Don't stand there like a dog! Don't you hear what is being said, Nancy? Miss Leicester gives me one insult after another, and you must set her right."

"Don't listen to him, darling, listen to me!" cried Dorothy, throwing her arms round the girl's trembling form. "Is—is this awful thing forced upon you, or do you mean to marry him of your own free will? Nancy, you must answer me."

Nancy reared her head, her eyes went across to those of the man she must call master. At the cruel, wicked look in his face she flinched; she seemed to see her uncle alone, deserted, perhaps dying, for she knew Crawshaw would give him no mercy.

"I marry him of my own free will," she said, slowly and deliberately.

Dorothy's arms slackened in their hold, and she stepped back.

"Then," she said, in trembling tones, "then there is nothing left for me to do but to offer my sincere apologies to Mr. Crawshaw, and—and to wish you happiness, dear."

Derrick Darnley had not moved through this short, strange interview, but at Nancy's cold, curt words he started, and moved forward.

As she was unmerciful in her strength, so he would show her he

She stood with her head erect, and her arms hanging nerveless by her side, and Crawshaw gazed at her with savage joy shining in his black eyes.

"So we're quits at last, Nancy, are we?" he said, with a sneer. "I swore to bring you to my feet; I swore I'd make you my wife; and you see I've kept my word."

And then turning on his heel, he lounged to the room which Sir Humphrey, with his boundless hospitality, had placed at the disposal of the millionaire whenever he felt inclined to use it.

Nancy watched him go with dry, hot eyes, then with a shudder she walked across the lawn.

She could not go indoors yet; she could not bear to meet Dorothy's face, full of pain and undisguised contempt.

Just as she reached the edge of the lawn she saw two forms coming toward her, carrying something between them, and evidently making for the plantation.

She stopped till they came. She had guessed their errand.

"The dog is dead, Foster?" she said, questioningly, "er—uncle—constrained."

"Yes, miss, she were in such agony we was obliged to give her poison. Poor Zoe! Well, she's out of all further hurt, miss. She can't get no kicks now. You'll forgive me, miss, but I'd sooner serve under a savage nor be a servant of Mr. Crawshaw's."

Nancy made no reply, and the men passed on. For an instant she stood motionless; then she stretched out her hands with a gesture of despair.

"If—if I could only die as Zoe has died!" she moaned.

Alas! for her the end of her misery was not to come yet.

* * * * *

The tidings of Miss Hamilton's engagement to the millionaire were received first with incredulity and then with amazement, tempered in some cases with excessive annoyance. Lady Burton could not control herself sufficiently to offer her congratulations to either party; while as for the Hon. Maude, a severe and very unusual headache kept her confined to her room for many hours.

The Countess of Merefield was disagreeable about the matter, Mrs. Darnley indifferent; while as for Lord Merefield and Sir Humphrey, they were, to use their own terms, "simply flabbergasted!"

But every one kept their opinions to themselves when either of the affianced couple were present, and in a very short time Nancy found that she was treated with a marked show of deference by the very people who had tried previously to snub her and taunt her with her dependency on Sir Humphrey's bounty.

Derrick Darnley had been called away to London on private and sudden duty early the morning following on his return from transacting his mother's business.

No one knew why he had gone save one person, and she had the knowledge buried deep in her heart of hearts, never to be revealed.

THE SUPREME TEST.

Most youngsters have their own ideas of greatness, as they have of everything else that comes within their reach. To a boy's mind, a battle is all sound and fury; the hero of the fight is the one who has inspired most fear among the enemy. Among the stories told by Garvey in his book, "Irish Land and Humor," there is one relating to Lord Wolseley after his return to England from service in India.

Wolseley, who is fond of children, was once introduced to a boy four years old. The child gazed at the general with an expression half incredulous, and then said:

"Are you the Wolseley that fought in the battles?"

"Yes, I was in a good many battles," said the noble lord.

The youngster looked at him in wondering silence, and then said, "Let's hear you holler!"

Bassompierre, French Ambassador to Spain, was giving his sovereign, Henry IV., an account of the manner of his entry into Madrid. "I was mounted on the very smallest mule in the world," said the Ambassador. "Ah," said the King, "what an amusing sight to see the biggest ass mounted on the smallest mule!" "I was your Majesty's representative," rejoined Bassompierre.

visibly on her white cheeks and quivering lips, that it awoke his pity.

Crawshaw smiled almost insolently. "You are young and hasty, Miss Leicester, and so I will pass it over this time," he observed. "Wait," he added, as Dorothy drew herself up with flashing eyes, "we shall come to a more satisfactory conclusion if we refer to Miss Hamilton herself, as being the supposed aggrieved party."

He threw away his cigar, and with great deliberation, he turned to Nancy.

"Did I insult you just now?" he asked, shortly.

She tried to speak, to meet his gaze. Surely he would spare her the pain of this publicity! She lifted her eyes to his, but at the determination and triumph written in his they fell again.

Dorothy broke in hurriedly before she could find her voice:

"Miss Hamilton does not desire to hold further conversation with you, Mr. Crawshaw," she said, with trembling lips.

"Does she?" Crawshaw gave a short, sneering laugh. "Is that correct, Miss Hamilton? Come, don't be shy. Why not speak up, and tell Miss Leicester as you don't find fault with a man taking a kiss from his future wife?" and, with a dash of his black eyes and another short laugh, he bent forward deliberately and touched the girl's cheek with his lips.

Dorothy started back.

"Nancy!" she cried, and a whole volume of astonished horror was expressed in that one word, her hand slipped from Nancy's arm, she seemed positively stunned at this blow.

Nancy stood alone, for the Hon. Maude had run away, overcome with sudden jealousy, surprise and disappointment.

Dorothy's eyes were fixed on her downcast face.

"Nancy, is this true?"

Mrs. Fairfax was intensely interested, she had not been so much amused for years. She forgot Mr. Darnley for the instant as she leaned forward eagerly.

The moment had come—the fatal moment for which her long vigil during the past few hours was to have prepared her. Dorothy's voice seemed to scatter all her strength, to crush out all her courage; she could not speak or move.

But if she were feeble, Crawshaw was not; with an air of proprietorship he took Nancy's hand.

"Miss Leicester seems to doubt my word," he said, in a voice that betrayed his anger, yet in which his triumph still rang, "perhaps she'll believe you, Nancy."

Dorothy pushed him on one side, and snatched Nancy's two cold hands in her own.

"I will not believe it! I will not!" she said, in tones of such pain that pierced Nancy to the quick. "Nancy—Nancy, say this is not true!"

The girl rested her hands in those two gentle ones for one instant. There comes a limit even to suffering, and her limit had come. A sense of numbness was creeping over her aching heart, a dignity born of despair slowly filled her every limb; the lumpy past was dead; she had cried for help, for deliverance, and none had come, now she must rivet the chains that were to bind her henceforth to one whom she knew to be beneath the very and—and to wish you happiness, dear."

Derrick Darnley had not moved through this short, strange interview, but at Nancy's cold, curt words he started, and moved forward.

As she was unmerciful in her strength, so he would show her he had no mercy.

"Of course you do, Dolly," he said, speaking very easily and clearly; "and so do we all. Come, Mrs. Fairfax, where are your congratulations?"

"Here, and at Miss Hamilton's service," was the prompt reply. "My dear, I congratulate you most sincerely. You will be the envy of half London, and the manor house is a positive dream. While as to Mr. (Crawshaw)—the keen-witted little matron held out her hand with a graceful gesture—"it is fortunate for me that I am a married woman, or there is no saying what injury I might not have done Miss Hamilton for forestalling me in his affections."

Mrs. Fairfax was well versed in tiding over awkward moments, and her tact certainly did good service now; but though she was outwardly so easy and unsuspicious, she was inwardly consumed with curiosity.

"Something very like a tragedy. I don't particularly like the girl. She is too outspoken, and much too pretty; but she is also much too good for this brute."

She kissed Nancy with a show of warmth, and then it dawned on her that perhaps she had better go indoors.

"Nearly half-past eleven!" she cried, with a little shriek, as she glanced at her watch. "We shall get no beauty-sleep. Good-night, dears," to Dorothy and Nancy. "Good-night, you lucky man!" to Crawshaw. To Darnley she gave a coquettish smile.

"Good-night Sir Derrick," she was beginning, when he interrupted her:

"I will escort you to the foot of the stairs, fair lady, with your permission. Dorothy, what are you going to do?"

"I will accompany you," answered Dorothy, and without a glance, a word, to Nancy, she mounted the steps to the terrace, and then passed into the hall with the other two.

The girl then left understood her action only too well. It was the outward expression of the hard thoughts that every one would harbor against her henceforth. She stood branded in the world's eye as a manoeuvring, mercenary adventuress, who would sacrifice her youth, beauty, everything, for the sake of the luxury Thomas Crawshaw's money would bring.

DAME BOUCHARD FOUND RELIEF IN DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

They cured her Daughter's Kidney Disease and she tried them herself, with the result that her backache and heart trouble are gone.

Jonquieres, Chicoutimi Co., Que., Apr. 17 (Special).—Encouraged to use Dodd's Kidney Pills by the fact that they completely cured her little girl of kidney disease, Dame Jos. Bouchard of this village, is satisfied she has at last found permanent relief from the heart trouble and backache that have troubled her for so long.

"Yes," Dame Bouchard says, in an interview, "I am happy to tell you Dodd's Kidney Pills have made me well. They completely cured my little girl, twelve years old, of kidney disease, so I made up my mind to try them for my backache and heart trouble. I have taken twelve boxes and feel sure that they will completely cure me."

Dodd's Kidney Pills are doing a great work in this neighborhood. They have yet to find a case of kidney disease they cannot cure. Whether the disease takes the form of Backache, Lumbago, Rheumatism, Urinary Trouble or Bright's Disease, it is all the same to Dodd's Kidney Pills. They always cure it.

Mifkins—"Would it hurt your feelings if I should call you a liar?" Bifkins—"Oh, no, but it might hurt my knuckles."

Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup needs no recommendation. To all who are familiar with it, it speaks for itself. Years of use in the treatment of colds and coughs and all affections of the throat has unquestionably established its place among the very best medicines for such diseases. If you give it a trial you will not regret it. You will find it 25 cents well invested.

THRASHED OUT.

With an air of melancholy resignation, twelve-year-old Horace went to his teacher the other day and handed in the following note from his mother before taking his seat:

"Dear Sir, Please excuse Horace for not being present yesterday. He played truant, but you needn't thrash him for it, as the boy he played truant with an' him fell out, an' he thrashed Horace; an' a man they threw stones at caught him an' thrashed him; an' the driver of a cart they hung on to thrashed him; an' the owner of a cat they chased thrashed him. Then I thrashed him when he came home, after which his father thrashed him, an' I had to give him another one for being impudent to me for telling father. So you need not thrash him until next time. KING GEORGE OF GREECE.

An Adopted Monarch Who Has Got Along Very Well.

The Danish royal family was lucky in securing thrones, but Prince William Christian Alphonse George, who reigns in Greece today under the name of George I., King of the Hellenes (not of Greece but of the Greeks), is the luckiest of all, according to the Eastern and Western Review; for anarchism in Greece is unknown and royalty walks freely and unmolested. King George has comparatively an easy time of it. Gifted with no small share of worldly goods, for besides the civil list granted by the Greek Government he receives an additional grant from the three protecting powers — England, Russia, and France—he is therefore considered one of the richest rulers in Europe. The court expenses, both private and public, are limited; no one could accuse the King of undue display or of squandering his royal estate.

Both he and the Queen set an example by their simplicity of living, both at home and in their travels abroad. They brought up their family as becomes the democratic spirit of the country.

Forty-three years ago the King married the young and beautiful Grand Duchess Olga Constantinovna of Russia. The Crown Prince and his son, Prince George, having been born in Greece and brought up in the national creed of the country, the Greek Orthodox Church, are looked upon as native Greek Princes by the nation with which they have wholly and entirely identified themselves.

It was a difficult task for anyone coming to a country that had been divided by internal strife, after expelling its ruler, to reign over a turbulent race as yet unused to any higher authority. Happily, the King adapted himself to circumstances, and aided by a natural gift of foresight and keen intelligence won the respect and devotion of his subjects. He assumed for his motto, "My strength lies in the love of my people," which pleased every Greek heart.

"Your face is a mass of scars. Did you cut yourself while shaving?" "No; but I managed to shave myself while cutting."

PHILOSOPHY.
Philosophy, my boy, is the gentle art of letting your creditors do all the worrying."

WHEN THE KING MOTORS.

It may not be generally known that the drivers of the motor cars of the king, the Prince of Wales, and the Duke of Connaught are all policemen, says London Tit-Bits. The late King's instructions were: "Run no risks, but lose no time." The latter clause used to be obeyed so implicitly that Lord Denby once when returning from Newmarket a "horse's length" behind the King, on whom he was in attendance, was stopped in his motor by the police at Barnet—a happy illustration of the principle that the King can do no wrong. The royal drivers do not rely on a motor horn alone. Alongside them on the box there sits a footman, who plays a key bugle to announce the approach of the car.

IN THREE ACCIDENTS.

A report sent by Mrs. E. Davey, 788 Ellice Ave., Winnipeg, will illustrate the value of Zam-Buk. She says: "My little boy, of three, while playing, fell from a high verandah to the ground, cutting his forehead badly. Instead of calling a doctor who would undoubtedly have put in a number of stitches, I bathed the wound well, and applied Zam-Buk. The little fellow, although suffering keenly, soon got relief from his pain. In the course of three weeks, by applying Zam-Buk daily, the wound was nicely healed.

"Since then I have also used Zam-Buk for a boil which came on my cheek, and which proved very painful and looked unsightly. Zam-Buk soon drew the boil to a head and it then quickly banished it.

"Another time my baby was scalded on her left thigh and calf of leg with boiling water. Directly it was done I thought to use Zam-Buk, and spreading some on lint I wrapped up the baby's limb. Next morning she rested much easier and I applied a fresh bandage with Zam-Buk. I kept this treatment up daily, and was rewarded by seeing a great improvement each time I dressed the wound. In a very short space of time the scalds were all nicely healed.

For all skin injuries and diseases, piles, eczema, salt rheum and face sores, Zam-Buk is absolutely unequalled. 50c. box all druggists and stores, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Try Zam-Buk Soap! Only 25c. tablet.

A physician was once arguing with his lawyer friend concerning the personal characteristics of one of the latter's clients. "It's no use," he said finally "you can't make an angel out of a man." "No, that's so, I can't," rejoined the lawyer, with feeling. "We have to leave that for you doctors."

ACCIDENTAL DISCOVERY GIVES Startling Results—Puts Flesh on Thin People and Rounds Out Imperfect Figures.

Simple Prescription Given.

For women—and men, too, for that matter—who can never appear stylish with anything they wear, because of abnormal thinness and angularity, this remarkable prescription is destined to solve the problem. As a beauty maker for the figure it is simply wonderful while it aids brightness to the eyes, and color to the cheeks and lips. It requires no particular dieting, but acts as an aid to nature by its peculiar action on the nerves and blood supply. The blood and nerves distribute over the body all the nourishment or flesh building elements obtained from the food. The trouble with thin people has always been that they do not absorb or retain enough of the feisty matter to make them gain in weight even to a normal extent, but this new discovery of blending certain harmless drugs is a revelation to science and hundreds have gained from ten to forty pounds in a few weeks. There is no danger of becoming too fat. When you get the right weight then stop using.

The general health and strength is greatly improved in anyone from the age of sixteen to sixty. Women soon get plump, with well rounded arms and full bust, and men become straight, strong-looking and healthy.

In a half pint bottle get three ounces of essence of pepin and three ounces syrup rhubarb. Then add one ounce compound essence cardia chama and stand two hours. Then add one ounce tincture sardomene compound (not cardamom). Take a teaspoonful before and after meals, and weigh before beginning.

ONE LOOK WAS ENOUGH.

The pedlar rapped timidly at the kitchen entrance. Mrs. Kelly, angry at being interrupted in her washing, flung open the door and glowered at him.

"Did you wish to see me?" she demanded in threatening tones.

The pedlar backed off a few steps.

"Well, if I did," he assured her, with an apologetic grin, "I got my wish, thank you."

Sleeplessness.—Sleep is the great restorer and to be deprived of it is vital loss. Whatever may be the cause of it, indigestion, nervous derangement or mental worry, try a course of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. By regulating the action of the stomach, whereby the trouble lies, they will restore normal conditions and healthful sleep will follow. They exert a sedative force upon the nerves and where there is unrest they bring rest.

SHIPWRECK OR COLLISION

FOR WHICH CAPTAINS ARE SEVERELY PUNISHED.

Accidents are Most Serious to Skippers, Though Some Ship-owners are Lenient.

The recent running aground of the big transatlantic liner Prinzess Irene, near the port of New York, and the spectacular scenes ensuing which culminated in the freeing of the ship, have brought to the fore the interesting question of what becomes of captains who lose their ships, either with or without passengers.

In the case of shipwreck or collision at sea the general rule of the big steamship lines has been that the captain who is at fault not only loses his place in the service but frequently has his certificate suspended by the licensing authority. This is one reason why captains prefer to go down with their ships.

A few companies, the North German Lloyd among them, are lenient, giving commanders and other officers another chance if their previous record is good and if the ship does not become a total loss. On the other hand, the White Star Line and others have a hard and fast rule that commanders who lose their vessels or are in a collision that costs the company a big sum of money, are to be dismissed.

Captain Inman Sealby, who commanded the Republic when she sank after a collision with the Italian liner Florida on January 23rd, 1909, although no blame was attached to him for faulty navigation or seamanship in handling the vessel, was dismissed from the service, and is now studying admiralty law at the University of Michigan. All his sea career had been with the White Star Line, and he had been sixteen years in command in the China, Australian and Mediterranean trades.

PREHN RETAINED HIS SHIP.

Capt. E. Prehn of the North German Lloyd liner Prinz Friedrich Wilhelm, backing out of his pier at Hoboken last September, went two-thirds of the way across the river and collided with the outbound French liner Lorraine, smashing in her bows and doing considerable damage to her plates. He is still in command of his vessel, which is evidence that the directors considered he was not to blame.

Captain Sidney Leyland, in command of the Atlantic Transport liner Minnehaha when she struck on the Scilly Islands two years ago, and was afterward got off and repaired, had his certificate suspended by the British Board of Trade for three months and was dismissed from the service. He had previously grounded the company's liner Minnetonka at the mouth of the Thames, but without damaging the hull of the vessel. She was the Commodore ship and as a disciplinary measure Capt. Leyland was put in command of the Minnehaha. He is now in charge of a number of dredges for the Panama Canal Commission at Cristobal, after failing to get another sea command when his three months' suspension expired.

Steamship companies look ask-entirely to your careless and indifferent navigation, as an hour before the disaster you assumed charge of the watch and took the bridge, and directed the navigation of the ship yourself." Mr. Uhler ruled that the captain might be licensed as a chief mate of ocean steamers, and after having served two years as chief mate, might again be licensed as a master of ocean steamers.

In a dense snowstorm the American Line steamer St. Paul rammed and destroyed the British second-class cruiser Gladiator off the Isle of Wight on April 25, 1908. The bow of the St. Paul was damaged, and she was compelled to put back to port. Capt. Passow, of the St. Paul, and his chief officer, with the regular pilot of the American Line, were on the bridge at the time of the accident. The Admiralty Court decided that the Gladiator alone was to blame. More than a score of the crew of the Gladiator lost their lives.

After the White Star liner Suevic struck near the Lizard eight years ago the London Board of Trade suspended the certificate of her commander for three months, having found that the disaster was due to the fault of Capt. Jones in maintaining full speed while heading toward the land in thick weather.

WOMEN CAJOLED SKIPPER.

A peculiar case, where a captain lost his certificate as well as his ship, was that of the stranding of the cruising steam yacht Norse King in April, 1893, on the coast of Zante, when she had about 250 tourists on board. Capt. Wright was keeping a course about seven miles off the coast on a clear evening about 5 o'clock, when a deputation of the women passengers asked him if he could go a little closer in order that they could see the picturesque white villages which shone in the sunlight against the vine-covered hills in the background.

The skipper kindly altered his course accordingly, and the passengers on deck cried out in admiration: "Oh, my, isn't it delightful to see so close Iona's isles, where Byron once lived? What a nice man the captain is!"

Just then there was a crash which changed the cries of admiration to screams of fear. The Norse King had gone hard and fast on a reef running out from the shore. The 250 passengers were three weeks on Zante, living on dried currants, figs, wild pig and hard cheese made from goats' milk, in the land that Byron trod.

The first thing the passengers did on reaching land was to hold an indignation meeting on a vine-clad hill, denouncing the skipper for his negligence and signing a round robin to that effect. The Norse King was a total loss. Capt. Wright had his certificate suspended for twelve months.

UNWRITTEN LAWS.

Traditions Which Have Almost the Force of Statutes.

There is a class of unwritten law which does not and cannot become written law, says Case and Comment, because it approaches so near the danger line that man dare not recognize it to the extent of publishing it and declaring it as a

THE PRESENT DAY CRIMINAL

PICTURESQUE EXPRESSIONS OF THE UNDERWORLD.

The Vocabulary of Criminal Slang is Large and Hard to Understand.

"Modern criminal slang has expressiveness and applicability," says a writer in Case and Comment. "It has taken our modern civilization to make the present day criminal and to evolve his peculiar dialect.

"To everybody the subject appeals as interesting, but to certain classes it is vital. I mean all detectives, policemen, lawyers — in short all persons in any way whatever connected with the administration of justice.

"Crooks can converse at will in the presence of the police or can write to each other without being in the least understood by the uninitiated. The average policeman is known to the underworld as a 'harness bull,' and the criminal feels a contempt for the officer's knowledge.

"Thieves from different parts of the country have different expressions, though after a 'meet' of Western and Eastern thieves an interchange of slang follows and one group readily picks up the sayings of the other. A critical study of this slang of the criminal world is interesting.

"Take the pickpocket, who is called 'a gun.' 'A gun' is a thief who does not use force, which sounds like a paradox, but is nevertheless true. In this way he is unlike the 'gorilla,' the strong arm highwayman.

A 'GRAFTER' IS A THIEF.

A complaint or charge is a 'rap' and the complainant is the 'rapper.' The one whose property is stolen is the 'sucker' and the Judge is the 'beak.'

"A 'fall' is an arrest; 'fall money' is what is used to liberate a man from custody. 'To spring a man' is to bail him out. And to help square the 'sucker' and get a man off clear from any charge the 'underground wires' must be used. A pocketbook is a 'poke' and the man who jumps his bail, becoming a fugitive from justice, is a 'lame-master.'

"The thief who steals your pocketbook is the 'wire' or 'tool,' and the gang of three or more pickpockets who travel together is called a 'mob.' A 'swell mob' is a gang that can hire first class legal talent and have good financial backing. When a man is convicted of crime he is 'settled,' or, to use the English phrase, 'unfortunate.'

"If a girl loses her fellow through a court sentence she is 'divorced.' A 'swell mouthpiece' is a very good lawyer, while a very bad one is called a 'shyster.' A pickpocket is frequently called a 'dip,' and in Western States a 'cannon.'

"A shoplifter is called a 'booster,' or 'hoister' or 'hyster,' and an exceptionally smart one a 'swell booster.' A green goods man when plying his trade is said to be 'out of the spud.' Store thieves who steal jewelry are called 'penny weighters,' while thieves who tap store there runs through it a vein of good natured humor."

HUMOR OF THE LONDONER.

Native Quite Convinced of His Ability to be Funny.

Pett Ridge gave an amusing lecture on Cockney humor to the Playgoer's Club at the Hotel Cecil, London, recently.

"In London," he said, "you may charge a man with manslaughter or pitch and toss and he will remain your friend. Accuse him of want of humor and all acquaintanceship is over. The lower middle class are the only people left in London who say exactly what they mean. Other ranks may possess humor, but for the most part they conceal it."

"The humor of London has a character of its own, and much of its success is due to prompt delivery. It has the qualities of pertinence and impertinence—the second quite indispensable. The Irishman seems surprised to find himself amusing. The Scotsman plans and organizes his jokes. The Londoner has such confidence in himself that he never hesitates or exhibits astonishment."

"The reputation of the omnibus driver was perhaps higher than it deserved, but with the disappearance of the horse-drawn omnibus, some of the gaiety of the London streets has gone. It was not an omnibusman but a cab driver who was told to drive to Charing Cross.

"'If you catch the train,' said the fare, 'I will give you 5s. If not, the usual farce.'

"'I understand,' said the man, 'you mean no cross, no crown.'

"The best form of London humor suggests, rather than describes. Two newspaper boys in Ludgate-circus were auditing accounts.

"'I'm a ha'penny short,' said one.

"The other, cracking walnuts, said it had nothing to do with him.

"'I daresay it has not,' replied the first. 'Still, there it is. I'm a ha'penny short and you're eating nuts.'

"There ought to be a National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to the Dull. But the Londoner must chaff or cease to live. Perhaps the most acute shafts of wit are reserved for the very few whom it is known that they take home all their wages to their wives.

"I think that the State might well take a leaf from your collecting books.

"On one afternoon a week in school the State might give up sternness for a bit; books and inkstands might be put in the corner, and the time given up to sheer amusement, so as to give the youngsters a chance of acquiring the valuable art of laughter. I make the suggestion because there is nothing to me so beautiful as the laughter of a child."

GREY ARMY UNIFORMS.

Germany and France Have Adopted These Colors.

Germany has set the fashion for a new army service uniform. Khaki has had its innings. It was adopted by the British army and spread to practically all the armies of the world. Then it was discovered that although khaki color was very suitable as a service dress for soldiers in the dusty plains of Africa and India, it was hardly efficient against the green. Summer in command of the minnenana. He is now in charge of a number of dredges for the Panama Canal Commission at Cristobal, after failing to get another sea command when his three months' suspension expired.

Steamship companies look askance at the mariner who loses his ship in these days, but 40 or 50 years ago, when there was no official load line and coffin ships left port frequently never to return, the master who could pile his ship up snugly on a sandy beach along the African coast for preference, without losing his crew, could always get plenty of work.

THE INSURANCE COMPANIES.

One of the chief factors which militates against a steamship company giving a captain another command after he has lost his vessel is the insurance companies. From the time a man gets command of a ship his record is kept at Lloyd's Agency, London, in a big book alphabetically arranged, so that the underwriters can refer at once to the career of a captain when he is appointed to a new ship.

Capt. Dunning, in command of the Cunard liner Slavonia, when she struck on Flores Island on June 11, 1900, and became a total loss, was reprimanded severely by the Court of Inquiry, but his certificate was not suspended. He had to leave the Cunard service, however, and is now the Marine superintendent of the United Fruit Company.

Capt. Le Horn, formerly Commodore of the Peninsular and Oriental Navigation Company, stranded his vessel, the China, off Perini Island in the Red Sea in 1897. It cost the company about $400,000 to get her off. At the court of Inquiry it was proved that the second officer, who was on the bridge while the captain was at dinner, had sent down three notes by the quartermaster to inform the captain that the ship was rapidly neaching Coal House Point, and that the course should be altered. It was the birthday anniversary of Lady Brassey, one of the passengers, who sat at the captain's right hand, and he was so engrossed in conversation that he pushed the note aside and the ship went aground before the passengers had finished their meal. That finished his career. An order was issued by the company that officers were not to associate with the passengers in future, and notices to that effect were posted in all the cabins. This was the cause of about 100 officers resigning, as they were men of good families and had means of their own. To-day, owing to the lack of officers the Peninsular and Oriental Company is forced to take its junior officers from the British cadet ships.

FROM CAPTAIN TO MATE.

On the evening of March 4, 1907, the Great Northern liner Dakota struck a rock near the Mojima Lighthouse, forty miles from Yokohama. The passengers and crew were landed at the lighthouse. The Dakota proved a total loss. The local Board of Steamboat Inspectors at Seattle heard evidence that Capt. Francke, the commander, was to blame, and the captain appealed to George Uhler, Supervising Inspector General of the Steamboat Inspection Service, who replied:

"I am forced to the conclusion that the stranding of the vessel and her subsequent total loss was due

FORCE OF STATUTES.

There is a class of unwritten law which does not and cannot become written law, says Case and Comment, because it approaches so near the danger line that man dare not recognize it to the extent of publishing it and declaring it as a part of the positive law.

It is the unwritten law of the sea that a captain must go down with his ship. Men dare not write it into the contract, and nations dare not incorporate it in their navy or marine regulations, yet the tyrants of the sea know the law, and believe that to obey it betters their service, and there are few instances of its being disregarded.

It is the unwritten law of the army and navy that an officer shall not seek cover, or at least shall not show apprehension of danger to his person, in time of battle, and in the presence of enlisted men or common sailors. In the Franco-Prussian War nearly four thousand officers of the German army were killed and the great majority of them gave up their lives because they believed in the law of conduct.

The law justifying one person in the killing of another has required the serious consideration of every country. Every criminal code provides certain punishments for homicide, and many of them graduate the punishment with minute particularity, according to the circumstances of the killing, so that any one of six crimes may be involved in a single tragedy. Such codes also attempt to define what killing is justifiable and what is excusable and with their interpretation by the courts attempt to describe the only conditions under which one human being can kill another and not be guilty of crime.

The Hebrew code almost stands alone in its recognition of man's desire to kill and his right to have that desire and that climax of all satisfactions which comes to him who under great provocation slays another. It is not at all strange that in this branch there should be an extended code of unwritten as written law, unwritten now and always to be unwritten for the reason that the recognition given by its embodiment in the statutes would be taken as a license by dishonest men and would result in harm rather than good.

WOMEN OF SOUTH AFRICA.

The South African woman is generally very highly domesticated; she is not only capable of managing her native servants very cleverly, but she is able to cook well, make jam and pickles, look after poultry, attend to the garden and make her own dresses and those of her children, says the Empire Magazine. The social life in all South African towns is a strong feature, dancing is a favorite amusement and holiday picnics on river banks are general. Women play tennis, croquet and golf and do a good deal of cycling.

Life in South Africa ranges from old established culture and luxury, with every surrounding convenience and taste, to the loneliness of the veldt farm, and to this life and her husband's interests, the English born girl soon adapts herself if she is at all adaptable. She can be healthy, happy and free and usually fairly prosperous, with more money to spend than she would have in a similar position at home.

A shopkeeper is called a 'booster,' or 'hoister' or 'hyster,' and an exceptionally smart one a 'swell booster.' A green goods man when plying his trade is said to be 'out of the spud.' Store thieves who steal jewelry are called 'penny weighters,' while thieves who tap store tills are called 'damp getters,' and when working are said to be 'out of the heel.'

"Thieves who steal diamonds or other precious stones from the person are called 'prop getters' or 'stone getters.' A woman thief is called a 'gun moll,' and a male thief who makes a specialty of robbing women is called a 'moll buzzer.' A safe blower is called a 'gopher man,' 'peterman' or 'veggman' and 'gervier.' An empty safe is called 'blowmer.' A second story worker who breaks and enters dwelling houses is called a 'houseman,' 'porch climber' and 'flat worker.'

"Turn out" is to discharge from arrest and put a man on the street.

The go-between of lobbyists who buys up legislators, is called the 'gravel train,' because he has the 'rocks' whereby he can debauch legislators, and the lobbyist himself is known to the criminal world as a 'dress suit burglar.'

The thief who robs drunken men is called a 'lush toucher,' and the stylish hotel beat is called a 'baron.' A lodging house is called a 'doss house,' and to sleep is to 'doss.' A restaurant is a 'dump' or 'beanery,' and a convict who works the churches and is insincere in his profession of religion is termed a 'mission stiff.' A minister is called a 'sky jilt' and a Catholic priest is called a 'Galway' or 'buck.'

"A pris' or turnkey is alluded to as a 'screw' and prison food is called 'steamed grub.' 'Mugged' is photographed and 'stood up' is to be placed in the line at police headquarters for identification and exposed to the gaze of probable 'rapers.'

is the police station, and an 'ink pot' is a resort for low characters.

"A 'thimble' and 'turnip' is a watch, and counterfeit money is 'bad dough.' Diamonds with flaws are called 'bum rocks,' and a 'fixer' is a man who looks after the interests of the man who is arrested, squares the 'sucker,' hires the lawyer and attends to all necessary details. A chief of police is a 'buzzard' or 'mean person,' and a 'good fellow' is a thief, man or woman, who pays his bills.

"A 'prison stool pigeon' is a 'trusty psalm singer' or 'pig,' and 'stick and slug' means 'keep together and fight.' 'Slinging the lingo' is to hold a conversation in slang, while a 'mush' is an umbrella and a 'wife' is a handkerchief. 'Track 13 and a washout' is a life sentence in a Western penitentiary, and 'Salt Creek' means death in the electric chair.

"Anchor" is a stay of execution of sentence, and a 'lifeboat' is a pardon.

"Making the boast" is getting by the pardon board and obtaining a pardon. 'Shakedown' is paying for police protection against your will, and a 'dead criminal' is one who has become discouraged, reformed or given up grafting. 'Rat' is a cheap thief who squeals on 'fall money' and refuses to pay his bills.

"These are but a few specimens out of hundreds which might be given. The vocabulary of criminal slang is large, and strangely enough adopted by the British army and spread to practically all the armies of the world. Then it was discovered that although khaki color was very suitable as a service dress for soldiers in the dusty plains of Africa and India, it was hardly efficient against the green Summer backgrounds and grey-white winter coloring of a European terrain.

A German officer wandering on the Indian frontier had his attention drawn to the peculiar slate-colored body-clothes affected by the Yaghistan Afidis. He was told that the reason this color was so generally worn was that it disappeared rapidly on a rock-bound hillside, even in a blazing sun, and became invisible at a few feet distant in the night, and that it was used by the Afidis as an artificial protection in their blood feuds by day and thieving expeditions by night. He returned to Berlin with a report that set the army clothing experts thinking.

As a result of exhaustive tests the German general staff hit upon a blue-green-grey mixture that blended with the Summer green and the blue-grey Winter shadows of European scenery. Trials have given entire satisfaction, so much so that bodies of hussars when wearing the new uniform were mistaken for parties of led horses.

France has now decided to adopt a similar color, and the Ministry of War has selected a light grey-green for the kit that is to supersede the blue great coat and the red trousers that French soldiers have worn in victory and defeat for half a century. Two battalions taking part in this year's French maneuvers will be supplied with uniforms made from the new material.

LONDONERS "SLEEP OUT."

Take Up Health Fad in Order to Tone up Jaded Nerves.

The latest health fad in London, England, is to "sleep out" either on balconies or in tents and many persons are having huts erected in their gardens with one side open, or screens fitted to their balconies because it has been breathed again doing it because they are consumptive or anything like that, but simply because they think it is the finest thing in the world for nerves, and because it tones up the whole system.

"The human system wants plenty of oxygen," said a physician, who is interested in the movement, "and the time when the air is best is in the early morning, when the air in bedrooms is at its worst because for this purpose. They are not and again in the night. Huts are generally made so that they can be closed to keep the winds out, but though persons usually close them at first in windy weather, in a few days' time they leave them wide open, wind or calm. The whole idea is to breathe perfectly fresh air all the time one is sleeping."

Another physician, however, offers a warning "not to take to sleeping out, even in summer, unless you have been accustomed to plenty of fresh air in your bedroom. It is only the hardy out-door man who can fold himself up in a blanket and go to sleep under the stars with impunity, at any rate, without special preparation.

"These are but a few specimens out of hundreds which might be given. The vocabulary of criminal slang is large, and strangely enough

SLEEP'S MYSTERIES.

Some Strange Facts That Await Scientific Explanations.

Sleep is one of the many scientific mysteries that still await solution. What it is exactly nobody knows, says the London Pictorial. But many curious facts have recently been discovered about it by the world's savants.

For instance, when we sleep the lower half of us weighs more than the upper half. The brain is lighter and the legs are heavier. Experiments have shown that if a man goes to sleep on a bed suspended exactly at the middle point of his weight his head begins to tip slowly up, and his feet go down. When he awakes it is to find that his head is getting nearer and nearer the ceiling and his feet nearer the floor.

This is due to the fact that when we are asleep the blood in the brain goes off to other parts of the body. The moment the brain awakes to life again it draws the blood back. In fact, a doctor can bring the most restless of individuals sleep in a few seconds by tightly compressing the great arteries in the neck which carry blood to the brain.

So, in sleep, the brain is lighter and the feet are heavier. Perhaps that is why policemen have been known to sleep on their beats. But, then, cases have been known of long-distance cyclists sleeping on the saddle, of infantrymen sleeping on the march, of wearied pianists dozing as they struck the keys. In fact, almost any part of the brain may be awake, several parts, indeed, at once, and yet its owner may be fast asleep. A man may talk, walk, sing, type, solve mathematical problems and yet be safely in the land of Nod. One of Coleridge's finest poems—"Khubla Khan"—was the work of a sleeping brain. The famous "Devil's Sonata" came as a pleasant surprise to its composer, Tartini. He found it on the table when he got up one morning. He had written it in the night while asleep.

In fact, exactly what part of the brain it is that does sleep it is hard to decide. Our sense of time, for instance, is stronger when we are asleep than when we are awake. Experiments conducted some years ago on a number of men and women between the ages of 20 and 30 showed that 59 per cent. of them were able to wake up in the morning at any time they had decided upon the night before. The resolve seems to wind up a little clock on the subconscious brain.

When the hour has arrived the clock gives, in some mysterious way, the alarm to the day shift of the brain, and the eyelids open. And then the night shift goes to sleep in turn. At any rate that clock does not seem to work in the daytime. Resolve some morning to pull out your watch when 11.30 comes round.

You won't, except by chance.

Another curious fact about sleep is that the further a part of the body is away from the brain the less soundly it sleeps. A touch on the toe will awaken you much more readily than a touch on the shoulder.

Some scientists hold that we do not really need sleep at all, that it is a relic of primeval times, when there was no such thing as artificial light. Some way had to be found of passing the blank time of night, and so someone invented it. It may be remarked that

WHEN RISES SPELL RUIN

IRELAND, SCOTLAND, INDIA

ABOUT THE GLITTER OF A LITTLE EXTRA GOLD.

An Increase in Salary is Sometimes the Ruination of People.

A rise in salary seems a desirable thing, yet it has before now proved to be the undoing of a man, and has led to human suffering and sorrow of all sorts and conditions, says Pearson's Weekly.

True, a rise in salary ought not to have any such effect, but all depends on the man who receives it—and his wife, for very often the wife is the factor who most counts in the way of bringing disaster when a man is advanced in the world.

In the first place, with a great many couples, a substantial rise in salary means an advance in many other directions—to put in plainly, the man who is advanced is often poorer after his rise than he was formerly.

A good rise, you see, means in many cases, a better style of living, a more ample board, and so on, a more ample board and sometimes it involves a higher rent, and of course, with a larger house additional furniture has to be purchased, new carpets, and many other sundries.

After his rise in salary Jones, instead of a plain steak at dinner, requires something better and more costly. Result, an increased bill at the butcher's. His briar pipe is not nearly so much used, and cigars take its place, and so on; a general increase all round takes place.

PRINT BLOUSES WON'T DO.

And if Jones breaks out in new directions, what about Mrs. Jones? Well, naturally enough, she insists of having a share of the good things going; print blouses won't do after a fine rise in salary, no, but silk ones quite fill the bill.

And then she is amongst a better class of neighbors in the new house to which they have removed. How are those neighbors' houses decorated and adorned?

In due course, by mixing with her new-found acquaintances, she finds out, and then Jones finds out that his banking account will have to be drawn on, for has not his wife discovered that they are "no class" compared with their neighbors?

She absolutely insists on being upsides with these other ladies, and thus spends a lot of good money in buying curios, and other knick-knacks, until in the end Jones' increase has quite disappeared, and he is much worse off than he formerly was.

GRIPPED BY DEBT.

Alas, in too many cases the man who has got a fine advance goes straight ahead until he is in the clutches of that grim monster debt, and even when in the clutches of that fiend he still goes on hoping against hope—hoping for goodness knows what.

Bills cannot be settled, creditors become pressing, settlements are demanded. Jones perhaps manages to raise a loan, and thus gets a few of his more persistent creditors paid off, but the loan stands, and more often than not it has

APPROACHING TOUR OF KING GEORGE AND QUEEN MARY.

Will Begin Shortly After the Coronation—Outline of the Tour.

It is now possible from the official announcements that have been made to outline in detail the King's tours in Scotland and Ireland, which will take place in July about a fortnight after the Coronation, and to give an idea of the principal events of a memorable year from June to December, in which month his Majesty will visit India for the Delhi Durbar, says the London Express. The Royal events in the order in which it is expected they will happen are:—Coronation, June 22; Royal Progress, June 23; Norwich Show, June 26; Investiture of Prince of Wales, July; proposed visit to Isle of Man, July; visit to India, December.

As regards his Majestic's tours in Ireland and Scotland, it is probable that the precedent of King Edward's visits will be mainly followed. The tours will not begin until after the visit to Norwich and Carnarvon Castle for the Investiture, when it is expected that the King will return to London. If his Majesty decides to visit Scotland by water, he will proceed to Portsmouth, and board the Victoria and Albert. At any rate, the Royal yacht will be kept in readiness to carry the King across the Irish Channel to Dublin.

VISIT TO ISLE OF MAN.

Although no official announcement has been made, it is fully expected that the King will pay a short visit to the Isle of Man on the outward or homeward journey from Ireland. If this visit is decided upon the Royal yacht, which, of course, will be escorted by battleships, will not enter Douglas Bay, but will seek the safer anchorage in Ramsay Bay, which is the only bay in the island suitable for the anchorage of naval ships. A landing will probably be effected at Ramsey, the northern capital of the Island, where the Governor, Lord Raglan, will receive the Royal party at the end of the pier. At the top of the steps of this pier there is a bronze tablet commemorating the visit of King Edward, who on that occasion remained only a few hours in the island.

Queen Victoria, accompanied by the Prince Consort, paid a visit to Ramsey while on their way to a cruise in Scottish waters, and the Albert Tower was erected on the wooded hill that overlooks the town.

SCOTLAND AND IRELAND.

The news that the King, accompanied by the Queen, will visit Scotland and Ireland, has been greeted with loyal enthusiasm in the capitals of the two countries, and further details are being eagerly awaited. Although Sir Arthur Bigge has stated that "nothing has been settled yet" as to the likelihood of including Belfast in the Irish tour, it is highly probable that the Royal yacht will steam into Belfast Lough during the cruise in the Irish Channel, and it is practically assured that Glasgow and with the outside world will be possible early in June.

Daniel Robinson, a rancher of near Nelson, B.C., crawled 1½ miles to his shack, with a broken leg, and spent 48 hours alone without food or water, before help came. The new saw mill at Big Eddy, on the Columbia River, about a mile west of Revelstoke, B.C., will have a capacity of 100,000 feet per day.

During one week, out of 105 arrivals at the hall in Edmonton, 42 were Germans, few of whom could speak a word of English. The other nationalities were completely outnumbered. NEW WAY TO TRAP ANIMALS.

Tigers Are Now Caught With Sticky Fly Paper.

A new way to catch tigers has been revealed by Payson Stewart, who has just returned to England from India where he learned about it.

A certain Indian gentleman of wealth and title has a hobby of taming and domesticating wild animals. His last experience, according to Mr. Stewart, was with tigers which he had captured and brought to his place at great expense. For a long time they were kept in a compound until they seemed to have become as harmless and tame as house cats. Then they were let loose to be pets of the neighborhood. Immediately their jungle tastes and habits returned.

The first night they cleaned out a native village and ate up something like a score of inhabitants. In spite of all the ensuing excitement, the would-be tiger tamer insisted that the animals must be captured alive and returned to the compound; they were too valuable to be killed and so the hunting party was disbanded.

No volunteers came forward, however, to catch the tigers as you do sheep, or even by putting salt on their tails. Then western ingenuity came to the front. Mr. Stewart suggested fly paper. Hundreds of sheets of it were spread around the lawns. While the anxious people in the houses were peering out that night the tigers prowled up, stepped on the sticky fly paper, seemed very much disconcerted when it did not drop off and that the more they rubbed around to wipe it away they more they got on.

In a minute or so what might have been an approaching tragedy was turned into a burlesque. The tigers changed from terrors to clowns in their struggles with the fly paper. They rolled on the ground to rub it off and finally became wiggling, howling bundles of paper instead of ferocious wild animals. They were so stuck up that they couldn't even see and hardly move, and were easily captured.

ADVICE TO YOUNG MEN.

A well known Philadelphia florist recently gave some excellent advice to the young man who sends flowers as gifts. "To a blonde girl," said this man, "send pink roses, to a brunette red or yellow, to an auburn-haired girl send white roses, for a girl with brown hair use your own judgment."

er.

THE TREE OF TRUTH.

How an Officer Was Detected of a Theft.

In her recent book descriptive of the Island of Cuba, Irene A. Wright has given a pretty legend told her in Guanajay, a town not far from Havana. "Opposite its principal cafe is the plaza, unusually attractive, it seemed to me; in its little plots of soil the roses bloom the year round. Adjoining the cafe building is the church; its altars are curious, and I have since heard, regarding one of the trees of the small yard about it, the best legend told me with reference to any locality in Cuba. In the shade of that tree one must speak the truth.

"In the early years,—the story goes,—when Indian chiefs were still powerful enough to make it worth the Spaniards while to placate them, the daughter of a cacique of a Guanajay tribe was robbed of a wonderful necklace of pearls. So great was her father's wrath that it became necessary to punish someone for the theft; and as the culprit could not be identified, they pitched upon a young man who, by some unhappy circumstance, might safely be charged with the crime.

"The young man was condemned to die, though he denied his guilt up to the very moment of execution. A priest, mounted on a mule, accompanied him to the spot where the church now stands, where death was to be inflicted.

"The victim, still protesting that he had stolen no pearls, asked for ten minutes' final grace, and it was granted.

"The firing-squad stood close at hand, and especially near was the officer in charge. The priest, still mounted on his mule, kept close by the prisoner; and he, as the minutes sped, called upon Santiago and upon Mary to heed his plight.

"The padre's mule, at that critical juncture, snatched at a single leaf drifting down from the tree in the shade of which he rested, and missed it; but his teeth caught in the doublet of the officer in charge of the firing-squad, ripped it open—and the missing pearls fell to the ground in the sight of all.

BACK TO THE LAND.

In a recent address to the Royal Society, Lord Robson declared that men of science have unconsciously attacked the problem of over-crowding in cities by rendering it possible and profitable for factories to be established away from great towns. This results from improvements in the transmission of electric power whereby the factories may have the precise amount of power they want sent down to them every morning by wire at a trivial cost. The result will be, he thought, that "some day manufacturers will begin to go back to the land, and we shall regard engine-building or soap-boiling as rural occupations."

against hope—hoping for goodness knows what.

Bills cannot be settled, creditors become pressing, settlements are demanded. Jones perhaps manages to raise a loan, and thus gets a few of his more persistent creditors paid off, but the loan stands, and more often than not it has been obtained from a moneylender, for such men as Jones will not go to a business friend or a well-off neighbor and confess that he is in financial difficulties.

Then in due course interest is not paid to date—Jones, in short, falls quite behind; the moneylender cannot get his cash, he presses for payment; he cannot get a penny, so he sues Jones with the result that—well, often enough poor Jones is sold up, lock, stock, and barrel, and that is sometimes the end of Jones, for in certain cases he is dismissed from his situation on account of his reputation.

CREEP BEFORE YOU GO.

This is no uncommon case; scores of men go just like Jones; men are passing through the same experiences every day. A rise in salary, beautiful as it looks at the moment, sometimes spells ruin, absolute and complete; and keep that in mind, ye who grumble about your small salaries. Were they increased there is no saying what would happen to you; you might be brought precious near to the workhouse, for all you know to the contrary.

Of course, on the other hand, you might be able to most thoroughly enjoy an advance in salary. Fortunately, we are not all like Jones, and some of us have sensible wives who do not hanker after the impossible.

A man should creep before he tries to go, and he who receives an advance should remain where he is, and be contented with all he has, house, furniture, and everything, till he finds out just exactly what his rise means.

If he finds he can afford better things let him have them—when he knows how many of those "better things" he can comfortably pay for without getting into debt. It is easy to get into debt, very easy, but it is the hardest thing in the world to get one's feet clear again.

and further details are being eagerly awaited. Although Sir Arthur Bigge has stated that "nothing has been settled yet" as to the likelihood of including Belfast in the Irish tour, it is highly probable that the Royal yacht will steam into Belfast Lough during the cruise in the Irish Channel, and it is practically assured that Glasgow will be included in the Scottish tour. There is every possibility of combining the two visits into one big tour, in which case their Majesties will sail up the Firth of Clyde, disembarking at Gourock, and proceeding thence by train to the commercial capital.

The following is a list of probable events of the two tours:

Glasgow.—Visit to Scottish National Exhibition, Glasgow University, and Royal Infirmary (opening of new buildings).

Edinburgh.—Stay at Holyrood Palace, where Court and Levee will be held, Edinburgh Castle, Rosyth Dockyard works and civic functions. Opening of new Chapel at St. Giles' Cathedral.

Dublin.—Landing at Kingstown Pier. Residence at Viceregal Lodge, Phoenix Park, brilliant court functions at Dublin Castle. Review of troops.

Belfast.—Residence at Newtonards, Lord Londonderry's Ulster seat. Civic function at City Hall. Visit to shipyards.

IRISH TOUR.

The Irish visit may include a motor tour through the congested districts in Connemara and Galway, following King Edward's precedent. It has been stated that the Midland and Great Western Railway Company of Ireland have been notified that a Royal train will be needed. It is probable, therefore, that the King will proceed by train from Dublin through Tullamore and Athlone to Galway, where the motor tour will begin.

At the end of the eventful year the King will leave for India, travelling by the ordinary route on one of the Indian liners to Bombay.

DOWN WITH THE HOUSE FLY.

At an illustrated lecture in Philadelphia recently Dr. Wendmeyer, the pathologist, said a single fly speck contained 3,000 bacilli, and as disease carriers their scope of activity was beyond estimation. As the best means of ridding the country of these pests, he advised a plentiful use of lime and of kerosene, together with effectual screening of the windows and the burning or burying of refuse.

Brantford Expositor.

The fact that there is a "land hunger" in the United States which the latter country is unable to satisfy affords an explanation in part of the exodus from that country to Canada; an exodus which must ever increase in volume.

Halifax Acadia Recorder.

We have the abandoned farm—too much of it—we have acres cleared, or partly so. Unlimited resources and splendid markets are at our doors. What we need, the farmer with skill, some capital and industry, can only be secured by a hearty, active co-operation—with details—such as alone could have secured results elsewhere.

Moncton Transcript.

In the Tory campaign literature sent to Ottawa in packing cases and then franked through the mails by Tory M. P.'s to Nova Scotia electors no mention is made of reciprocity. Why this omission? Do they realize that reciprocity is so popular it is poor tactics for them to join with the Tory party at Ottawa in fighting it.

Regina Leader.

The use being made of all this silly twaddle about annexation is merely a confession that the reciprocity agreement is so strong and sound when judged upon a business basis that the Tory "organs" dare not so consider and discuss it, but must endeavor to throw dust in the eyes of the people by introducing a subject as dead as Adam.

Kingston Whig.

In connection with this power matter what Kingston wants is cheap rates, not cheap talk. The Hydro-Electric Commission will have to mesmerize the people before it can induce them to become liable for 1,200 horse power at $42 a year for thirty years, when they get just what they want, no more, and indefinitely, at $25 a horse power.

Mount Forest Confederate.

Typhoid fever, scarlet fever, smallpox, diphtheria, and latest, mumps, have done their best at Ottawa to put some sort of check on the reciprocity debate, but without much success. If mumps should only become general among loquacious members there might be a stoppage to the Parliamentary jaw, and the country would be quite cheerful over it.

A SOUVENIR OF THE MASTER.

The Singular Memento That Was Safely and Secretly Treasured by a Cold, Rigid and Rather Disagreeable Old Englishwoman.

"When I was a very small boy indeed," writes Ford M. Hueffer in Harper's, "when I wore green velvetine clothes, red stockings and long golden curls, thus displaying to an unsympathetic world the fact of my pre-lithophaeite origin, I was taken one day to a very large hall. In front of us was a wooden platform draped all in red. Upon the platform was a grand piano.

"In front of me the first row of the stalls had been taken away, and in place of them there had been put three gilded armchairs, before which was a table covered with a profusion of flowers that drooped and trailed to the ground. Suddenly there was applause—a considerable amount of applause. A lady and gentleman were coming from under the dark entry that led to the artists' room. They were the Prince and Princess of Wales. There was no doubt about that even for a small boy like myself.

"And then there was more applause. What applause! It volleyed, it rolled round the hall. All were on their feet. People climbed on to their chairs, they waved bands, they waved programs, they waved hats, they shouted. For in the dark entrance there had appeared, white and shining, a head with brown and sphinxlike features and white and long hair and the eternal wonderful smile.

"They advanced, these three, amid those tremendous shouts and enthusiasm—the two royal personages leading the master, one holding each hand. They approached the gilded armchairs immediately in front of me, and the prince and princess indicated to the master that he was to sit between them at the table covered with flowers.

"He made little pantomimes of modesty, he drew his hands through their grasp, he walked quickly away from the armchairs, and because I was just behind them he suddenly removed me from my seat and left me standing under all the eyes, solitary in the aisle of the center of the hall, while he sat down. I do not think I was frightened by the eyes, but I know I was terribly frightened by that great brown, aquiline face, with the piercing glance and the mirthless, distant, inscrutable smile.

"And immediately just beside me there began what appeared to be a gentle and courtly wrestling match. A gentleman of the royal suit approached the master. He refused to move. The prince approached the master. He sat indomitably still. Then the princess came and, taking him by the hand, drew him almost by force out of my stall, for it was my stall, after all.

"And when he was once upon his feet, as if to clinch the matter, she suddenly sat down in it herself, and with a sudden touch of good feeling she took me by the hand—the small solitary boy with the golden curls and the red stockings—and sat me upon her lap. I, alas, have no trace of the date on which I sat in a queen's lap, for it was all so very long ago the king is want you to learn this nice little poem about 'Peter Piper picked a peck of pickled peppers.'

"Shan't!" answered the Boston child, much in the manner of other children.

"Oh, naughty, naughty! Why, Waldo, why won't you learn this pretty poem?"

"For two reasons," answered Waldo. "In the first place, the alliteration of the line you quote is so excessive as to destroy any literary finish that such adventitious aids to metrical composition might lend if used more sparingly. And, in the second place, consider the impossibility of picking peppers which have already been pickled. The whole thing is beneath the attention of any intelligent person."—Boston Traveler.

The Primitive Man.

"Jones is so dreadfully primitive!"

"What's his latest?"

"Why, we were at the opera house the other night, and a stage band removed a table, and Jones yelled 'Supe, supe!' We were dreadfully mortified."

"I was at a dinner the other night, and Jones sat next to me. When he saw the row of spoons and forks and knives beside his plate he beckoned to the waiter, 'Say, boy,' he hoarsely muttered, 'I guess you spilled the spoon holder!'"

"Well, it's lucky he's rich."

"Ain't it?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Living in the fresh air, day and night, is a great preventer of tuberculosis, but it is not merely dwelling-houses and offices and workshops which need attention. What about places of public resort, such as theatres and churches, school buildings, railway trains, etc? How often the atmosphere of such places is absolutely stifling, and tuberculosis finds a congenial atmosphere.

St. Mary's Journal.

There is an agitation in the old country at the present time to return to the old-fashioned loaf known the world over as standard bread. The Bread and Food Reform League, which is urging the reform, has the co-operation of the King and Queen. The league recently issued a manifesto, in which fifty of the leading medical men of England recommend the loaf "made from flour that has been deprived of none of its nutriment in the grinding, as compared with the modern white loaf made from fine white flour."

St. Mary's Argus.

There was passed through the Customs here a few days ago for a company in Forest, Ont., a consignment of 27,772 trees on which $833 duty was paid, peach trees, plum trees, pear trees and apple trees. These are to be planted by this company on lands it has secured in the neighborhood of Forest. This is done in the face of the probability that the reciprocity pact will go through and speaks more eloquently and authoritatively on the bearing of reciprocity on the fruit-growing industry of Canada than all the super-heated editorials and speeches that have poured forth like lava from the Conservative press and Conservative platform for the last six months.

Lucknow Sentinel.

It seems, however, that though the small mills are being killed off times are very prosperous with the big milling companies—the ones that complain that they can't stand American competition. The three largest Canadian milling companies, have, says Harpell, a combined capitalization of $14,000,000, of which almost $6,000,000 is common stock. The net earnings of these three companies in 1909 paid all expenses, dividends on preferred stock, interest on bonds, and still left a balance of nearly $926,000, or equal to 15% per cent on the common stock, which, it may be remarked, represents no investment at all. "The net earnings of these three companies, on their actual capital must have been considerably over 50 per cent."

Winnipeg Free Press.

Practically all the farm papers in Canada are friendly to the reciprocity agreement, while all the farm papers in the United States are bitterly opposed to it. The Rural New Yorker, one of the oldest and most influential of the agricultural journals in the United States, sums up the case against reciprocity in these terms:

"With the tariff removed from farm products, the trickling stream of immigration away from this country will swell to a flood. The man in Alberta or Saskatchewan will be as near the wheat or cattle markets as he who lives in Iowa or Kansas. Yet the former can find land at twenty dollars an acre, even superior to that for which the latter must pay $150. Yet with free trade the products of the two farms will meet on equal terms". There could be no better advertisement for Western Canada than this.

took me by the hand—the small solitary boy with the golden curls and the red stockings—and sat me upon her lap. I, alas, have no trace of the date on which I sat in a queen's lap, for it was all so very long ago; the king is dead, the master is long since dead, the hall itself is pulled down and has utterly disappeared.

"I had a distant relative—oddly enough an English one, not a German—who married an official of the court of Weimar and became a lady in waiting on the grand duchess. As far as I know, there was nothing singularly sentimental about this lady. When I knew her she was cold, rigid and rather disagreeable. She had always about her a peculiar and disagreeable odor, and when she died a few years ago it was discovered that she wore round her neck a sachet, and in this sachet was a half smoked cigar.

"This was a relic of Franz Liszt. He had begun to smoke it many years before at a dinner which she had given, and, he having put it down unfinished, she had at once seized upon it and had worn it upon her person ever since. This sounds inexplicable and incredible, but there it is."

Settling a Bill.

When Andrew Jackson lived at Salisbury, N. C., he once attended court at Rockford, then the county seat of Surry, and left without paying his bill, which was duly charged up against him on the hotel register, which seems to have been the hotel ledger at that time, and so stood for many years. When the news of the victory of the 8th of January, 1815, was received in this then remote section the old landlord turned back the leaves of the register, took his pen and wrote under the account against Andrew Jackson, "Settled in full by the battle of New Orleans."

She Meant Well.

The late Sir Wilfrid Lawson, the rigid apostle of temperance, while on a week end visit made the acquaintance of a sharp young lady of seven, to whom, on leaving, he said: "Now, my dear, we have been talking some time. I am sure you have no idea who I am."

"Oh, yes, I have," the little missy replied. "You are the celebrated drunkard."—London Graphic.

Broke 62,458 Bottles.

On the morning of April 18, 1906, the cellar of Paul Masson, a wine merchant of San Jose, Cal., contained a stock of 125,000 bottles, all neatly arranged. Then came the earthquake, and when the proprietor was able to enter his cellar again he found that 62,458 bottles, by actual count, were broken and the remainder thrown about in the wildest confusion. It is curious, with such a large number of bottles, that the quake should have come within a few dozen of demolishing an exact half of the stock.—Wide World Magazine.

Then She Digs the Spurs In.

"Wives are amazing helps—splendid spurs," said a senator at a dinner in Washington. "No young man should be without at least one."

"Whenever a man fails his wife tells the public that he was too conscientious to succeed. What she tells him in private is a different matter."—Exchange.

CHILDHOOD'S OPPORTUNITY

No greater encouragement to thrift has ever been presented by any country than is offered to the people of Canada under the provisions of the Canadian Government Annuities Act, which was passed unanimously by both Houses of Parliament in 1908. While any resident of Canada may purchase, the Act was devised chiefly to enable wage-earners and others with limited incomes to make absolutely safe provision for the closing years of life in a way that would be impossible to make under any other conditions available. For example, a mechanic, whose weekly wage is but a little larger than his weekly expenditure, is, by paying $1.00 a week, purchasing Annuities for his two boys aged 5 and 7, the Annuities to become payable at 60. From that time as long as they live a yearly income of $347.76 and $497.78 respectively will be paid them by the Government. If they die before they are 60, the money paid in will be refunded to their heirs together with 3 per cent compound interest. So that for a total of $2,808 to be paid in an income combined of $1,045.54, or greater than the income to be derived from an investment of $20,000 at 5 per cent, would be received. The one thing is feasible for a man even with a very limited wage, while the other would be quite impossible for him. Taking advantage of the low rate to be obtained when the children are young is what parents should aim at—the children would carry the pay-

A BUNGLING CENSOR.

The Brilliant Genius That Used to Mangle Plays in Poland.

In 1869 there was a very strict censorship throughout Poland over all plays given in the theaters. It was, of course, very annoying to the actors and sometimes quite ridiculous. Mme. Modjeska in her "Memories and Impressions" says that during the winter of 1869 she was playing in Warsaw and that her actors had a great deal of fun every time a play came from the censor's office.

'Every noble sentiment was forbidden. Even some words were found distasteful, among others the word "slave." In one of the melodramas it was cut out and replaced by the word "negro," and the sentence, which ran "He was a slave to his passions," was changed to "He was a negro to his passions."

On another occasion the actor taking the part of a Roman Catholic priest had to say, "I love my country and my people, and I shall never leave them." The words "country" and "people" were changed to "wife and children."

In another play the words "He walked arm in arm with the emperor and whispered in his ear" were changed to "He walked three steps behind the emperor and whispered in his ear."

"These and like blunders became standing jokes among the actors and give an idea of the censorship at the

FOOD FOR A GENIUS.

Diet That Enabled Mrs. Siddons to Rise to Lady Macbeth.

It is not altogether easy to imagine a Lady Macbeth eating chops. Yet her greatest impersonator got her inspiration from them, if one may rely on an altogether delightful authority. On a certain occasion, writes E. V. Lucas in his book "The Second Post," the painter Haydon paid his butcher, who reciprocated by expressing great admiration for the artist's painting of "Alexander."

"Quite alive, sir," said the butcher.

"I am glad you think so," said the artist.

"Yes, sir; but, as I have often said to my sister, you could not have painted that picture, sir, if you had not eat my meat, sir."

"Very true, Mr. Sowerby."

"Ah, sir, I have a fancy for gen'us, sir."

"Have you, Mr. Sowerby?"

"Yes, sir. Mrs. Siddons, sir, has eat my meat, sir. Never was such a woman as for chops, sir! Ah, sir, she was a wonderful creature!"

"She was, Mr. Sowerby."

"Ah, sir, when she used to act that there character—but, Lord, such a head, as I say to my sister—that there woman, sir, that murders a king between 'em."

"Oh, Lady Macbeth."

"Ah, sir, that's it—Lady Macbeth. I used to get up with the butler behind her carriage when she acted, and I used to see her looking quite wild and all the people quite frightened. 'Aha, my lady,' says I, 'if it wasn't for my meat, though, you wouldn't be able to do that!'

THE BUSINESS

Taking advantage of the low rate to be obtained when the children are young is what parents should aim at—the children would carry the payments themselves as soon as they are able.

What a payment of 25 cents or 50 cents a week would purchase at any age may be ascertained upon application to S. T. Bastedo, Superintendent of Canadian Government Annuities, Ottawa, to whom letters go free of postage.

ZAM-BUK CURES PILES.

Read What Those Who Have Proved It Say.

Mr. Thomas Pearson, of Prince Albert, Sask., writes:—"I must thank you for the benefit I received from Zam-Buk. Last summer I suffered greatly from piles. I started to use Zam-Buk and found it gave me relief, so I continued it and after using three or four boxes I am pleased to say that it has effected a complete cure.

Mr. G. A. Dufresne, of 183-185 St Joseph Street, St. Roch, Quebec, P. Q., writes:—"I can heartily recommend Zam-Buk to everyone who suffers from piles. I have also found it most effective in curing a sore thumb with which my little son was suffering. The thumb had begun to swell and fester and had lost the nail. I persevered in the application of Zam-Buk and the sore is now entirely healed.

Not only for piles, but for inflamed sores, ulcers, eczema, ringworm, boils, eruptions, scalp sores, itch, children's sore heads, wounds, etc., Zam-Buk is without equal as a healer, and also for cuts, burns, stiffness and wherever and whenever a handy balm is called for. All druggists and stores at 50c box. Zam-Buk soap will be found as superior amongst medicinal and toilet soaps as the balm is amongst salves. Mothers should use it for baby's bath. 25c tablet, all druggists and stores, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto

Vancouver Province.

The hired man may have something to say about the length of the session at Ottawa. The rural member who assumes that he is going to take the hay crop off without any assistance is presuming on a contingency unlikely to occur in the alfalfa district.

Hunting on Treacherous Soil.

Snipe shooting on an Irish bog is an excellent test of a gunner's skill and enthusiasm. An experienced dog shooter if he finds himself going down throws himself flat on his side or back and at the same time throws his gun to his attendant, generally an unshod "gooson," who rarely fails to catch it. The sensation of being bogged is very unpleasant, but if a man throws himself on his side or back there is strength enough in the peat to support his body.—"Forty-five Years of Sport."

A Great Wheel.

Laxey, in the Isle of Man, is the headquarters of the lead mines of the island. It is celebrated also for its great wheel, which was erected in 1854. Its diameter is seventy-two feet, and so splendidly is it set that there is no oscillation, and it has been going practically ever since its erection.

emperor and whispered in his ear."

"These and like blunders became standing jokes among the actors and give an idea of the censorship at the time of my engagement in Warsaw. I am sure that our censor was overzealous in his services to the government and too ignorant of the language to see his absurd mistakes."

MALADIES OF METALS.

Curious Contagious Disease That Attacks Tin, Brass and Lead.

The alleged contagious diseases of metals is a topic that has been mentioned from time to time, but shall be mentioned again because it tends to promote uniformity in our views of mineral life and other kinds of life and to discredit the fashion of regarding anything in nature as dead and inert.

In a lecture before the Societe de Chimie Physique at Paris a professor spoke of the fact that tin when exposed to a temperature below the freezing point of mercury shows a kind of eruption of pustules in which the metal loses its ordinary shining surface, becomes gray and on being cut with a saw either falls to powder or breaks up into a bundle of fibers. This affection is capable of being communicated by contact, for the application of a few grains of the powder to the surface of a block of perfectly sound tin brings about its transformation in a few days.

In another transmittable disease of tin the structure of the metal is changed and becomes crystalline. This disease has a special tendency to attack joints which have been soldered, but it attacks brass and lead as well. Metals do seem more alive and organized than the earthy minerals.—Century Path.

Punished For Looking Healthy.

In the days of the Puritans the stocks were not unknown as a penalty for looking too healthy. Rudeness of complexion was a crime when a gaunt visage was regarded as an outward sign of sanctity. Dr. Echard, writing in the early eighteenth century, remarks: "Then it was they would scarcely let a round faced man go to heaven. If he had but a little blood in his cheeks his condition was accounted dangerous, and I will assure you a very honest man of sanguine complexion if he chanced to come nigh an official zealot's house might be set in the stocks only for looking fresh on a frosty morning." Few of the January faces to be seen in a London street, however, would run any risk of drawing down this penalty.—London Chronicle.

AFTER 1 YEARS SUFFERING

I Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Waurika, Okla.—“I had female troubles for seven years, was all run down, and so nervous I could do nothing. The doctors treated me for different things but did me no good. I got so bad that I could not sleep day or night. While in this condition I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and began its use and wrote to Mrs. Pinkham for advice. In a short time I had gained my average weight and am now strong and well.”—Mrs. SALLIE STEVENS, R. F. D. No. 3, Box 31, Waurika, Okla.

Another Grateful Woman

London, Ont.—I feel as if I could not tell others enough about the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was so weak and tired that I could not rest nights. A friend recommended your compound and I soon gained health and strength and could not wish to sleep better. I know other women who have taken it for the same purpose and they join me in praising it.—MRS. WM. A. BUFFY, 905 Dame St., London, Ont.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has surely cured many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, and nervous prostration.

Murder as a Fine Art.

It has been popularly supposed that Napoleon was directly and indirectly responsible for more deaths than any one else of modern times. But that estimate must be revised if the statement of Miss Southey in “Storm and Sunshine in South Africa” is to be accepted about the great Zulu king Tshaka, a contemporary of Napoleon, who “is believed to have accounted for the lives of over a million of his fellow creatures.” There still existed at the time of Miss Southey’s visit a very old lady who had known the despot and had many reminiscences of him.

Noblesse Oblige.”

In Mrs. Walford’s story of Lord Mansfield in her book entitled “Recollections of a Scottish Novelist” the top note of propriety is reached.

The noble lord’s young nephew, seeing him annoyed at a railway station at having no servant at hand to get his newspapers, ran posthaste and procured them. Lord Mansfield showed no gratitude whatever.

“Edward,” was all he would say, “recollect, Edward, that a gentleman should never hurry himself in public.”

CHANGED HIS OPINION.

He Guessed Four Times Before He Properly Labeled the Crowd.

At a banquet attended by nearly 300 members of a fraternal order in one of the large cities not long ago, given in honor of a citizen who had been elected president of the order, the orchestra, after playing several selections, struck up “Wearing of the Green.” Apparently everybody present began to sing it, almost drowning out the instruments.

Presently the orchestra began the well known strains of “Die Wacht am Rhein,” and the audience sang it en masse.

“I see I was wrong,” said the guest. “This is a German crowd.”

A few minutes later the musicians started up “Dixie.” There was the usual clapping of hands, and everybody present turned his voice loose.

“Again I was wrong,” he said. “This is a southern crowd.”

At last the orchestra began to play “My Country, ‘Tis of Thee.” It is scarcely necessary to say that everybody stood up and sang with all his might.

“I take it all back,” said the guest. “This is an American crowd.”

Yet he was right in one sense, in all four of his guesses. Yes, this is a wonderful country.—Youth’s Companion.

Colored Rain.

Showers of red rain have fallen more than once in the world’s history. In the middle ages they were looked upon as awful omens of war and bloodshed, but nowadays we know the hue of the “rain of blood” to be due to the presence of a tiny red insect, a variety of water flea. Red rains are very rare, but in volcanic regions gray rain is comparatively common. Sicily has had many showers of this shade. They are caused by the upper atmosphere being full of ash colored volcanic dust from Etna. This dust is infinitesimally fine and colors the rain as it falls.

A Good Age to Stop At.

A certain London merchant had for years given a dinner to his employees on the occasion of the birthday of his daughter. How long this custom had held may be gathered from the following. The head clerk of the office rose, as was also the custom, and proposed this toast:

“Gentlemen, we enjoy this evening the felicity of celebrating, as we do every year, thanks to his generosity, the twenty-ninth birthday of the respected and always amiable daughter of our worthy employer. I give you, gentlemen, her health and happiness.”—London Mail.

Irritating.

“He has a mean disposition, hasn’t he?”

Mrs. Agnes Edgar, of Grand Falls, N.B., had a terrible time with Inflammatory Rheumatism. Anyone who has had this most painful disease will understand her suffering—and her joy when she found Father Morrissey’s “No. 7” had cured her. She says:

“I took Father Morrissey’s Prescription for Inflammatory Rheumatism. I had suffered everything with it, but in three weeks after starting Father Morrissey’s Prescription I was able to do my work, and after taking four dollars worth of medicine I was well. I highly recommend it any sufferer with Rheumatism.”

Rheumatism comes from bad kidneys. The poisonous Uric Acid which they should remove stays in the blood, accumulates in joints and muscles, and causes agony. Father Morrissey’s “No. 7” puts the kidneys right, removes the Uric Acid from the blood and the whole system, and cures the Rheumatism. FIERY DRAGONS.

They Spat Out Fury From Tongues Barbed With Flame.

Dragons were important animals in ancient and medieval natural history. Until comparatively recent time no scientist ever thought of questioning the existence of this most formidable of beasts. The annals of Winchester for 1177 gravely state that “in this year dragons were seen of many in England.” Gesner, professor of natural history at Zurich, gave a detailed description of the dragon, while Aldrovandus in his “History of Serpents and Dragons,” published in 1640, devoted fifty pages to the monster.

A good specimen of a dragon would seem to have been a beast about the size of a sheep, incased in a coat of scales which shone like silver. Its back was serrated like a saw. It possessed a long tail, a pair of batlike wings, four heavily clawed feet and a wolverine head, the jaws of which were armed with very formidable teeth. The tongue was barbed with fire, and fury issued from the monster’s mouth, and the head bore a crest. Dragons were the most wicked and vindictive of creatures. They seem always to have been in a towering rage and spent the greater portion of their time in rushing up and down the earth destroying everything that came in their path.

The origin of dragons was a disputed point among medieval naturalists. Some maintained that these animals were generated by the heat of India. Others were of opinion that the volcanoes of Ethiopia used to belch forth the monsters. One scientist, John Leo by name, declared the dragon to be a hybrid, a cross between an eagle and a wolf.

BREATH OF A WOLF.

Here’s a Persian Remedy if a Bone Sticks In Your Throat.

A new and ingenious remedy for a bone in the throat will be found in an account of a Persian pilgrimage published under the title of “The Glory of the Shih World.” The doctor was Mirza Sadik Khan, chief physician of the vahid ul mulk:

The patient was brought in on the verge of death, and when his condition had been described the learned physician stroked his long beard and exclaimed: “By Allah! This case would be hopeless except for me, whose perception is phenomenal. The cause of this man’s state is a bone lodged in the throat so firmly that no efforts avail to dislodge it. notebook what he supposed to be the correct address.

The next day, desiring to go to the same place again, he called a cabman and pointed to the address that he had written down. The cabman looked him over, cracked his whip and drove away without him.

This experience being repeated with two or three other cabmen, the Russian turned indignantly to the police, with no better results. One officer would laugh, another would tap his head and make a motion imitating the revolution of a wheel, and so on.

Finally the poor foreigner gave it up and with a great deal of difficulty, recalling the landmarks which he had observed the day before, found his way to his friend's house. Arrived there and in company with one who could understand him, he delivered himself of a severe condemnation of the cabmen and the police of London for their impertinence and discourtesy.

His friend asked for a look at the mirth provoking address and the mystery was solved. This was the entry:

"Ring the Bell."

The Worth While Person.

Certain qualities go to the making of any human being whom other human beings esteem. Certain ingredients are as necessary to a man as flour and yeast to bread or iron and carbon to steel. You cannot make them any other way. There is a combination of steadiness of purpose, breadth of mind, kindness, wholesome common sense, justice, perhaps a dash of humor, certainly a capacity for the task in hand that produces a worth while person. The combination occurs in every rank in life. You find it as often in the kitchen as in the parlor; oftener, perhaps, in the field than in the office. The people who are so composed have spiritual length, breadth, thickness; they are people of three dimensions. Everybody feels alike about them.—Atlantic.

be hopeless except for me, whose perception is phenomenal. The cause of this man's state is a bone lodged in the throat so firmly that no efforts avail to dislodge it. Therefore either the man must quickly die or the bone must be dissolved, and by what agency? Thanks be to Allah, I am a physician and a Kermani and have observed that wolves, who live on raw meat and bones, never suffer any calamity such as that of the patient. Therefore it is clear to me that the breath of a wolf dissolves bones and that if one breathes down the throat of a patient the bone will be dissolved.

"Infinite are the marvels of Allah, for when a wolf belonging to a buffoon was brought in and breathed on the patient suddenly a fit of choking ensued and the bone, dissolved with out doubt by the breath of the wolf, was loosened and extracted."

LOSSES AT MONTE CARLO.

Not at the Gaming Tables, but From Thieves and Pickpockets.

The extent to which pickpockets carry on their calling at Monte Carlo is shown by the experiences of an Englishwoman, the wife of a prominent member of the British colony in Paris. While playing at the gaming tables in the casino she found suddenly that somebody had opened her bag and stolen her purse, which contained several hundred dollars. In a letter to her husband she writes:

"It was about 5 o'clock when they entered my complaint and a description of the purse in the ledger. I returned after 7 o'clock, and the clerk had to turn back three pages to find the entry.

"Surely," I said, "these are not all losses that have occurred since I was here two hours ago?"

"Yes, madame, they are," he replied, "and it's the same every day."

The writer thinks that "losses" is scarcely the right word to use. She relates the case of another Englishwoman who was robbed of $1,600 in the same way as herself. The victim actually caught a woman's hand in her bag and she held on until some detectives arrived, but the thief had already passed the notes to an accomplice, and she was allowed to go.—Cor. Dubious Work.

Many years ago when Colonel Frobisher of Atlanta was called on to gauge the water in a neighboring stream he one day had an amusing encounter with an old farmer who came along on a wood cart drawn by an ox.

When he reached the colonel he stopped the cart and inquired peremptorily: "What on 'arth are them men doin' thar?"

"They are trying to find out how many bucketfuls of water run down this creek in twenty-four hours," said the colonel.

"Mister, are that a true fact?" asked the farmer.

"Yes; that's just what it is," said the colonel.

"Well, mister," said the old man in a tone of much disapproval and anxiety, "it might be all right, but it do appear to me such doin's are unconstitutional!"—Youth's Companion.

"Two years ago, the doctor made forty-four calls on me, and then said he had done all he could for me. I was suffering with intense Kidney Trouble and Inflammation had set in. Two other doctors were consulted and agreed that nothing could be done to help me.

On the recommendation of a neighbor, I took "Fruit-a-tives" and they cured me. To-day, I take "Fruit-a-tives" as my only medicine. I am in excellent health, and "Fruit-a-tives" is the medicine that cured me after I had been at Death's Door for months.

SEED-TIME AND HARVEST.

The school children of Toronto had at their credit on the 10th of March last in the Penny Savings Bank $164,384.80; of which amount it is said one boy deposited the tidy sum of $500. This splendidly illustrates the advantage of a convenient means of depositing small amounts. But what is of greater importance to our young people, and to older people also, is that they should have some plan of investment for their savings that may be of permanent advantage to them, a plan that, when old age arrives and their earning days are over, will furnish an income that will enable them to live in comfort, happiness and dignity for the remainder of their lives. Such a plan is provided by the Canadian Government by its Annuities Act. If, for example, he had referred to who we will assume or the purpose of illustration is 16 years of age, will avail himself of this plan, and will deposit with the Government one-half of the amount which he has already saved, or $250, he will receive at 60 an Annuity of $154.85; and if he will add to his $250, $20 a year from 16 to 60, he will receive a further sum of $245.70, or a total income of $400.55 a year for life, payable in quarterly installments. If he should die before 60 all his payments would be returned to his estate with 3 percent compound interest; though the same payments would secure for him a larger Annuity if he did not wish to provide for this return.

If the pennies of the children had not been deposited in the Savings Bank, there is little doubt that in the majority of cases they would have been spent on trifles; but while the custodian of their savings is the Savings Bank, the temptation to withdraw will constantly recur. If deposited with the Government for the purchase of an Annuity, they cannot be withdrawn, for if they could be the object aimed at would probably in 99 cases out of 100 never be attained. SUBTLE VENGEANCE.

The Gift Dumas Bestowed on a Friend Who Insulted Him.

Alexandre Dumas the elder, the great novelist, had, as is well known, some black blood in his veins and was of an unforgiving if not almost cruel nature. In his earlier days he received a dire insult from one whom he called his friend. To the surprise of all who knew him Alexandre took no apparent notice of the wrong, but instead applied himself to looking carefully after the welfare of his supposed friend. He took him with him into society, introduced him here, presented him there and so continued for three years, at the end of which time he stood as "best man" at his friend's marriage.

The wedding feast being concluded, Alexandre Dumas was leaving the house when an acquaintance joined him and as they walked along said: "I have often wished to say how I have wondered at your great kindness to M. X., whom we have just seen married. You have the most forgiving nature that I have ever met with. He insulted you grossly some years ago, and yet ever since you have devoted yourself to his happiness and at last assisted him to get married."

"That's it precisely," remarked Dumas slowly, with a sinister chuckle. "I flatter myself that I have given him the most furious and lynx eyed mother-in-law in France." — London Telegraph.

NATURAL MEASURES.

The Hand, the Pace and the Cubit of the Scriptures.

The first "natural measurement" to which the memory naturally recurs is the hand, four inches, employed in determining the height of horses. This measure is, of course, derived from the breadth of the palm, and it has become so well fixed in popular esteem that it is unlikely it will ever be superseded.

Another popular natural measure is the pace, and probably every countryman who has had to do with land has used it. The usual method is to stride off, taking as long steps as possible, calling each pace a yard.

A natural measure much employed by a dressmaker is the yard as determined by stretching the material to be measured between her chin and her outstretched hand, or if it be a matter of inches she will fold the bended upper joint of her thumb along the cloth. These natural measures are generally close enough to serve all practical purposes.

For many hundreds of years there was employed the measure of the forearm from point of elbow to tip of middle finger. This was the cubit of the Bible.—St. Louis Republic.

Church Theaters.

Few people know that plays in England, Germany, Italy and France were fostered for religious purposes by the church centuries before they were taken up as a separate secular business. Moreover, few visitors to St. Paul's cathedral, in London, realize that that church during Elizabeth's reign and the first years of the reign of James I set aside one of its adjacent buildings for use as a secular theater. Its little stage was famous, and the company of choir boys as actors presented many of the great plays of Shakespeare's time. They acted from about 1598 to 1608 under the management of Edward Pierce, their great master in music, who as church almoner had business control of these adjacent buildings owned by the church.—London Standard.

purchase of an Annuity, they cannot be withdrawn, for if they could be the object aimed at would probably in 99 cases out of 100 never be attained. The advice of Sir Walter Raleigh: "Use thy youth so that thou mayst have comfort to remember it when it bath forsaken thee, and not sigh and grieve at the account thereof; use it as the springtime which soon departing and wherein thou oughtest to plant and sow all provision for a long and happy life," is good advice still, though given over three hundred years ago; and you can now plant and sow where the harvest will be sure and abundant, for the Annuities plan is positively the only plan open to you that will enable you to spend your principal and interest without your income becoming smaller no matter how long you may live.

In youth, life seems limitless and boundless, but before middle age is reached the shortening process becomes daily more real. There is no time to sow "wild oats". Statistics show that at 45 97 per cent of men meet with reverses and lose their entire accumulations; that at 60, 95 per cent are dependent upon their daily earnings or on their children for support; and that of those who fail at 45 only 2 per cent ever recover their financial standing. The advantages, therefore, which the Annuities system presents as a means of making provision for old age should be apparent to everyone. In an interview a few days ago with an old lady of 90, who is an inmate of a poor-house, she said she frequently cries for hours at a time at the thought of having to end her days in such a place. But no one who has purchased a Canadian Government Annuity need ever be afraid of ending his or her life there, as no process of law can deprive him or her of it. The wolf will never enter their door.

Anyone of the age of five or over who is domiciled in Canada may begin, and may receive the Annuity at 5 or any age thereafter; and any person now of the age of 55 or over may purchase an immediate Annuity. For a small addition to the ordinary rate an Annuity may be continued for a certain number of years though death occurs before the number of years expires.

Literature explaining all about this most provident system may be obtained at the post office or on application to S. T. Bastedo, Superintendent of Annuities, Ottawa, to whom letters go free of postage. He will be glad to give you all information if you will write to him.

"What do you do to keep your hands looking so nice?" "I don't do anything."

Doubtless most people are agreed that the radical discoverer and student of degeneracy, as pronounced a dozen years ago, went too far with his extreme findings. To-day in Great Britain there are antagonists to the chief principles and the chief deductions of the old school of degenerative dogma. For example, the new theory is that degeneracy—so called—is and has been the handmaid of evolution. Man must adapt himself to his environments. If a poor, weak minded, sloven shadow of a man is discovered in the darkened slums of the great city, it is to be decided that he is degenerate, or that, following the law of evolution, he merely is adapting himself to environment? There are portions of Africa, for example, in which sturdy black tribesmen in ages past have grown to the environment. The question is asked, How far would the white races of the northern hemisphere degenerate, weaken, and die if forced to take up residence in these sections of the dark continent? And the fact that these white people did die, would it be degeneracy or rather nature's attempt by slow degrees to acclimate the newcomers.

Tuberculosis has been called a degenerative disease. But the fact is that those nations longest exposed to consumption are most resistant of it. The black man dies in the proportion of 7 to 1 of tuberculosis. Is this degeneracy, or is it evolution? Slum life has been declared most conducive to degeneracy in crowded civilization, yet the Chinese and the Jews have crowded most in such environment and have not degenerated. That axiom in the theory of evolution is that the fittest subjects must survive. If puny children result from unhealthy parents in congestion slums, the question is asked, are these children puny because of heredity, or for the reason that slum environments are imposed? And if children survive the parentage and the slums, are they degenerates, or potential fitter parents adapted in a greater measure to a slum future? In brief, the exponents of the new theory of adaptation along the lines of evolution are declaring that the only element expressive of degeneracy in modern civilization lies in the death rate from want or from diseases against which there is insufficient resistance.

FLOWERS AS FOOD

Blossoms that Appear on the Table

Flowers Eaten in the East Especially

The violet pleases the palate as well as the sense of smell. A favorite sweetmeat in former days was made of the candied petals of the flower, and it is coming into favor again.

A sherbet made of extract of violets was much esteemed in the East, and Mohammed is reported to have said of it that it surpassed all other extracts. In some parts of Europe it is customary to mingle violets, roses and lime blossoms with preserves to add a flower element to the fruity flavor. In Egypt and Turkey violets are used in making sherbets as mint is employed in juleps in Kentucky.

Then there are crystallized carnations, lavender, syringa and lilac and rose leaf preserve made from the petals of Turkish rose leaves.

When one wishes to make a delicious orange flower candy or conserves the tiny bitter embryo orange is picked from the blossom's center. Besides the soothing potion distilled from orange blossoms and known as orange flower water a syrup is made by boiling the flowers with sugar. A little of this syrup stirred in iced water makes a refreshing summer drink, while orange flower syrup poured over buttercakes is delicious.

In this country floral sandwiches are generally made of nasturtiums, probably the most useful edible flower that grows here. Its young leaves, seed pods and stems, with or without the flowers, form appetizing salads and add to the piquancy of sauces, gravies, meat dishes, salads made of potatoes or herbs and pickles. In England the housewife often serves sandwiches made of finely chopped spearmint spread between thin slices of buttered bread with salads or cheese. She also makes wine by mixing cowslip pips with sweetbrier, strawberry leaves, dill, a few tips of thyme, honey and water, and boiling and fermenting this with yeast.

The unopened flowers of the globe artichoke, one of the thistles, appear on the table as a vegetable. If they are left on the plant they open out into handsome purple blossoms. Another food flower is the cauliflower, which Dr. Johnson is said to have called the finest flower in the garden. This is truly a flower that is eaten, for the snowy vegetables served at the table are the unexpanded flowers of a variety of cabbage.

The caper is another familiar flower which is eaten, being the unopened flowers of a spring bramble-like shrub of the Mediterranean region. This trailing plant has handsome pinkish white flowers with long tassels of stamens. The youngest and tenderest buds from the finest capers are known as nonpareil. As they grow larger and nearer flowering they become superfine, capucin and capot capers.

The tuber of the dahlia is an excellent article of food, albeit somewhat acrid, which is liked by the Mexicans, and is also eaten by the French. It was introduced into Europe for the purely commercial purpose of supplanting or supplement pod is frequently pickled. Americans have not yet learned to eat the flowers of the Abutilon esculentum, which in Brazil are commonly used as vegetables. The Delaware Indians formerly cultivated that variety of milkweed which bears an orange colored flower and is known also as butterfly weed and pleurisy root. The young shoots of this plant are cooked like asparagus.

The seeds in the heart of the sunflower yield a nutritious food. In Russia from the seeds a meal is obtained that is baked for general use in the Russian army and which is said to contain great sustaining power.

In the region of Cape Colony, in South Africa, people shake the branches of the Nelianthus major and then gather up for food the blossoms that shower from them and which are filled with delicious honey.

It is in Oriental countries that flowers form an important article of diet. Cloves and capers are familiar flowers that are eaten. The former are the immature blossoms of a plant of the myrtle order growing in the Moluccas. It is a beautiful evergreen tree thirty or forty feet high with crimson flowers. The buds are first light colored, then green and afterward red. At this stage they are gathered and dried. The little round knob in the centre of the clove is the unexpanded crimson blossom.

The chrysanthemum, Japan's queen of flowers, fills a useful as well as highly ornamental place in the life of that country. Chopped very fine and served with a sauce made of cream, it forms a salad much relished by the Japanese.

Another queen of flowers, the lily, contributes in a more solid form to the menu in some parts of China. Mrs. Anna Bird Bishop describes how the dried flowers of certain species of lily are eaten as a relish with meats, especially with pork. At Chinkiang, on the Yangtse, these lily flowers account for nearly one-fourteenth of the value of the exports. Their flavor and fragrance are pleasant when they are cooked as a vegetable, and when dried all manner of stews and fancy dishes are seasoned with them.

Many edible flowers are to be found in India. One of the most appreciated grows on a tree named the mhowad. The natives consume an enormous number of the flowers, whose pale yellow corolla is pulpy and thick and so full of sugar that there is no need to candy it and it is eaten either fresh or dried in the sun. It is largely eaten by the natives along with rice. It is said to have a luscious but peculiar taste when fresh and to resemble in flavor inferior figs when dry. It has been reckoned that a man and his wife and three children might be supported for three or four months on the flowers of one mhowad tree.

When the flowers are fresh they are put in cakes, to which they give a sweet flavor, but they are more especially used for making bread after they have been dried and re-

INTERNATIONAL LESSON, MAY 14.

Isaiah's vision and call to service,
Isa. 6. Golden Text,
Isa. 6. 8.

Verse I. The year that king Uzziah died—The exact date cannot be determined, and for our purposes is not important. It is the event itself, with all its stern meaning, and its contrast to the exalted heavenly Sovereign, to which the prophet calls our attention. The splendor of Uzziah's court, and the triumphant success of his long reign doubtless had made a deep impression upon the future prophet's imagination. The terrible judgment which had befallen the proud monarch, his hero, and his awful death, must have been a rude shock to one who had basked in the sunshine of this earthly sovereignty. It was at this crucial moment in his career that the vision of another throne came to him, on high and lifted up above all that is human.

His train—The skirts of his garments filled the entire space of the temple, the very place where Uzziah had committed his sin and met his fate.

2. Above him . . . the seraphim, nowhere else mentioned as angelic beings, are here represented as the attendants of the Lord, stand above him in the attitude of service. By their presence and actions they suggest the ineffable majesties of God. They seem to have been at least partly human in form, with two wings covering the face, that they might not see, and with two covering the feet, that they "might not be seen."

3. One cried unto another — They sang in antiphon, some crying, Holy, holy, holy, a thrice repeated tribute to the divine holiness (denoting a sense of distance, or contrast to the imperfections of the people), and the rest responding, in terms that describe the manifestation of the divine holiness in nature, and anticipate the universal diffusion of his glory.

4. The foundations of the thresholds—Meaning, of the temple, which had been polluted by the hypocritical worship of the nation. The smoke was not that of acceptable sacrifice accompanying the pure worship of the seraphs. It was like the mist which arises when fire and water come together, for here the sanctity of the divine comes in contact with the profanity of the human. Compare Rev. 15. 8. The smoke is a fitting antecedent of the rising feeling in the prophet's mind of the unworthiness of his people as expressed in the following verse.

5.—The impression made by the vision, the symbolic act expressing the divine pardon, and the ready response to the Lord's call to service.

5. A man of unclean lips—He would fain join in the praise ascribed to Jehovah, but he feels himself deprived of the right because of his mortal imperfections. These, in a man standing upon the threshold of a prophetic career, would most naturally show themselves in the lips, the organs of speech.

A people of unclean lips—Their worship, in startling contrast to

The French Academy has founded a new "grand prize" for the purpose of encouraging and rewarding what may be called idealism and moral beauty in fiction. The prize is to be $2,000, and it will be bestowed annually on the author of the best novel or other prose work of the imaginative sort which "is inspired by lofty sentiment." The academy has annual prizes for good work in history, poetry, oratory and the practice of virtue in conduct, but all that it has heretofore done for fiction has been limited to the "crowning" of novels and short story collections that it has found admirable. This is now deemed insufficient, hence the prize. There are cynical writers who say that the prize will stimulate mushy sentimentalism and insincere melodramatic "goodness" rather than genuine idealism. It is added that the "crowning" of novels has been a hindrance instead of a help to unknown authors with the discriminating public, for many of the crowned novels have been insipid and shallow. This, however, is a criticism of the personnel of the academy rather than of the idea itself.

Inspiration, lofty sentiment, truth and beauty are not incompatible with strength and sincere artistic purpose. If the academy is a bad judge of genuine art and beauty, another agency should set up a similar prize in competition with it. The point is that there are prizes in France for works of fiction that reveal force and originality, even if bizarre and unwholesome, and a prize for idealistic fiction of high merit is a proper offset. Life is not all sordid, bleak, pathological, and realism should not spell pessimism and gloom. Truth is not all painful and shocking; it is often elevating, consoling, sweet. If there are to be prizes at all, the new prize of the academy is eminently desirable, even if high-minded men and women of imagination and the gift of story telling may be depended on to write nobly and beautifully regardless of financial considerations.

HIS RISE.

Thomas was not the brightest specimen on earth, and, try as he might, and apply as he he might, could not succeed in obtaining a situation.

At last a bright idea occurred to him. He would offer his services free for a fortnight.

On these terms Mr. Ikey Fingelstein immediately engaged him.

The fortnight having expired, Thomas nervously petitioned for a "rise."

"What is your present salary?" asked Fingelstein.

"Nothing, sir," said Thomas.

Mr. Fingelstein contemplated the lad.

"Well, my boy, yer wages is doubled!"

And Thomas was completely satisfied—until he had had time to think over the generous offer.

en, as they grow larger and nearer flowering they become superfine, capucin and capot capers.

The tuber of the dahlia is an excellent article of food, albeit somewhat acrid, which is liked by the Mexicans, and is also eaten by the French. It was introduced into Europe for the purely commercial purpose of supplanting or supplementing the potato. It did not catch on as a food, but the gardeners perceived the possibilities of the flower and proceeded to produce the double dahlia and other novelties.

The dandelion makes a wine, while the leaves form the finest kind of greens when boiled. Elderberry blossoms make a white wine, the berry makes a blue wine, while elderblow tea was well known to our grandmothers.

The delicious flavor of many meat dishes and croquettes is due to the fact that the lard in which they have been fried has first been saturated with spicy herbs and blossoms, such as sweet basil flowers, lemon verbena, dill, mint, tarragon and sweet bay leaves.

The nettle has ceased to be an article of diet because unpleasant results follow the plucking of the blossoming sprays. Thistles, however, because of their agreeable flavor and nutritious properties, still remain in high flavor with men, goats and donkeys. The young leaves, tender stems, and well grown roots all serve as food, the former in a raw or cooked state and the latter always cooked. Every boy brought up in the country remembers chewing the nutritious petals of the flower.

Natives in the Southwestern States make bread from the powdered blossoms of the tulle plant, and also meal from buttercup seed, which does not seem to share the poisonous properties of the flower. Indians also concoct a thick, palatable soup from budding cattails. The embryo flower is long, tender and mucilaginous and is often served either steamed or stewed. To the northward Oregon Indians are wont to make bread and porridge of the seed of a yellow flowered crucifer, which they grind into meal.

The wild lettuce blossom is more attractive to the palate than to the eye, for together with its young leaves it forms a pleasing and nutritious article of diet, whether served as a salad or cooked as a vegetable. In the arid regions of the West grows a plant that belongs to the cress family and bears a green blossom, like a rosette, with thick, juicy leaves. This flower yields drink to the thirsty, and used as a food is of nutritive value. It is preferred in the raw state, when the addition of salad dressing is generally omitted. Indians secure some nourishment from clover blossoms.

In the Northwest and in British Columbia the fireweed yields young leaves for boiling, as well as a stalk that when opened furnishes a nourishing and well flavored pith that is easily scooped out and cooked.

One of the prettiest garden plants, the oxalis, is also one of the common flowers of the field. It appears as sour grass, horse sorrel and sheep sorrel, is useful in salads and as a pot herb, and is pleasant to the taste. It should, however, be eaten of sparingly, as the oxalic acid it contains has been known sometimes to poison those who indulge too freely in the dish.

Nasturtium blossoms are often eaten right from the bush, while the been reckoned that a man and his wife and three children might be supported for three or four months on the flowers of one mhowad tree.

When the flowers are fresh they are put in cakes, to which they give a sweet flavor, but they are more especially used for making bread after they have been dried and reduced to flour. By allowing them to ferment an agreeable wine, is produced and by distilling them a brandy is obtained of which the Hindus are very fond.

Hooker mentions two cases of flower eating in the Himalayas. The Lepchas eat the flower buds of a plant of the ginger family. They also cook and eat the flowers of a species of rhododendron. And then there is a plant which the natives call choklibi, a sort of lily of the valley, from two to five feet high, with crowded clusters of bell shaped flowers. They have discovered that the young flower heads, sheathed in tender green leaves, make an excellent vegetable. A traveller in Persia relates that the Baluchis eat the pollen bearing flowers of a certain tree.

The Pals of India make a preserve of the thick, glutinous calyx of the cotton tree, or as they call it, the pagoda tree. The Locha use a small yellow immortelle flower as food; flowers, leaves and stalks being thrown into the pot and boiled until tender.

The natives in certain parts of Event eat the fruit of a prickly shrub, the jujube tree. This is said to have been the lotus of ancient times. A native wine is made from the juice.

Every one has heard about the delicate flavor of the cabbage shaped blossom borne by the cabbage palm. Another blossom that furnishes food to large sections of India and Afghanistan is that of the phollgali. The poorer natives dry the pink, sugar filled flower and bake it into bread or cook it with butter or coconut oil. They also use the blossoms of the sorrel and of the shaddock in making sweetmeats.

In China the young blossoms of the banana plant are picked for use upon the table, while in India other ways of preparing them are preferred.

The pollen of certain species of reed is made into bread and thus eaten both in Scinde and New Zealand. The pollen of the sago palm is also eaten.

BRANDING CRIMINALS.

The branding of criminals, which Judge Rentoul suggests, might be advantageously revived for the benefit of deported aliens, was abolished in England in 1778, says the Pall Mall Gazette. Until then, this punishment was inflicted in open court, generally in the presence of the judge, the necessary implements—the iron brand, the chafing dish and the iron gripper for keeping the hand steady—being always in readiness. The usual brand was an "R" applied to the left shoulder. Child stealing, &c., however, were at one time punished by branding the offender with "R" on the shoulder (for rogue), "M" on the right hand (for manslayer), and "T" on the left hand (for thief).

ed to Jehovah, but he feels himself deprived of the right because of his mortal imperfections. These, in a man standing upon the threshold of a prophetic career, would most naturally show themselves in the lips, the organs of speech.

A people of unclean lips—Their worship, in startling contrast to that of these sinless seraphs, seemed to Isaiah corrupt and profane. Their lips, and therefore their acts of worship, were impure and unacceptable, because their lives were so. The man whose eyes had rested upon the august presence of the King could no longer tolerate the a

CREED OF TH

Man's Joy Will Consist Fulfilling God

In the one universal church to which all good men belong, composed of those of all faiths who honestly live up to the best they know, whether Christian or pagan, Jew or Gentile, Catholic or Protestant, there is a certain fundamental creed. This, the greatest common divisor of all creeds, may be thus stated:

1. The good man sees, acknowledges, and believes in, first of all, the difference between right and wrong. When the word ought disappears from one's vocabulary he may be sure of moral decay. The one man abominable to any decent society is the man who thinks nothing matters. We can tolerate one, even, who doubts there is a God; but if one believes there is no line between right and wrong, then as Dr. Johnson said, "let us count our spoons when he leaves."

2. The good man believes that happiness will come to him, permanently, and as a law, only as he practices doing right. Joy, peace, and bliss are not to be cozened nor juggled from God or nature, but are the sure portion of them that persistently do what they think right. Doing right, of course, does not always bring money or fame or other external desired things, but it brings peace and poise to the soul, as surely as three times five make fifteen. There are no more exceptions to this rule than to a law of physics or of geometry.

THE COSMIC ACCURACY runs in spiritual as well as in material things.

3. The good man's duty (in which he finds happiness) is first of all to develop his personality. God made him for a purpose. He is not to be some one else, not to copy; but, using all masters, to become more and more himself.

4. It is his duty to be strong. He can be of use to others only as he has force in himself. He therefore shuns all things that tend to weaken his arm, his brain, or his heart.

5. His duty is to be clean. This item of the creed is oldest and newest; oldest, in that cleansings were a part of every early religion, the commands of Moses, for instance, abounding in many lustral rites; newest, in that the one lesson of modern science is the power and safety of the antiseptic life. The devil's name as far as bodily health and mental clearness and spiritual vigor is concerned, is dirt. Dirt is

10. Make the heart . . . fat—The stubborn rejection of the message from God will result in their unfeeling hearts becoming still more unfeeling. The seeming harshness of such a revelation is due to our referring it to God, as if he willed their spiritual death. But the meaning is simply that the unbelief of these people is nothing more nor less than an incapacity for the will of their Maker (Compare Matt. 13. 14; Rom. 11. 8).

ARE HOPEFUL ABOUT CANCER

PROBLEM NARROWED DOWN, SAYS DR. BUSHFORD.

Cancer Not Communicable, But Result of Special Conditions in Each Case.

The Council of the Royal College of Surgeons has awarded the Walker prize of $500 for the best original work on the pathology and therapeutics of cancer carried on in any country in the last five years to Dr. Ernest Francis Bushford, director of the laboratory of the Imperial Cancer Research Fund of London, who must be regarded as the founder of experimental investigation in England.

Dr. Bushford outlined in an interview the encouraging results of the ten years work of the Imperial Cancer Research Fund and spoke hopefully of the outcome of the experiments now being carried on.

"The investigations of the last ten years," said Dr. Bushford, "have narrowed down the cancer problem to an extent previously impossible. As far as experiment permits of any conclusion it is demonstrated that the disease is not communicable from one individual to another but always arises afresh in each individual attacked.

"Thus many of the old conceptions which sought for a common cause for all the many and varied forms of cancer, such as cancer parasite or the growth of congenital germs of necessity doing a large number of mankind to death, have

GONE BY THE BOARD.

In their place the problem has been resolved into a question of the circumstances peculiar to the individual in whom the disease arises.

"It has been demonstrated for many races of mankind that the occurrence of the disease is determined by the practice of peculiar customs involving the chronic irritation of tissues, and by suitable irritations certain forms of cancer could be produced at will in mice.

"Just as it is certain that if the exotic customs of various native races were introduced into England the frequency of cancer in England would at once increase, so it appears practically certain that native races in which it is rife because of the practice of those customs would become correspondingly exempt in proportion as they discarded those practices.

"It may be that future investigation will show that a corresponding diminution in the frequency of cancer as it occurs in England under the present conditions in existence may also be secured by avoiding insults to which at the present time the human body is subjected in the course of following occupations, or, it may be, indulging in various whims of the appetite.

"In short, investigation has gone a long way to prove that the disease, when present, is almost certainly acquired, and therefore will ultimately probably be found to be to a large extent avoidable.

"The result of ten years work, not only in England but in all other countries in which there are centres of cancer, is that

Notes of Particular Interest to Women Folks

CHICKEN RECIPES.

Minced Chicken.—Cut some slices of cream bread two inches thick; one slice for each person to be served. Scoop out some of the interior. Place in hot oven to toast, not to dry out. Mince some cold cooked chicken or veal and make into a hot cream sauce. When the slices are nicely toasted fill with the chicken cream and serve at once. Makes a nice breakfast or luncheon dish.

Brown Fricassee of Chicken—After singeing and drawing, cut a tender fowl in pieces suitable for cooking. Take off the legs with second joints, then separate the second joints from the leg, making four pieces. Take off the wings, cut through the ribs on either side; unjoint back and breast; cut the breast in half lengthwise, making two pieces; unjoint back and make two pieces of lower back. In a kettle or saucepan place one-eighth pound of salt pork; when the fat is tried out add three teaspoonsfuls of butter and brown. After the chicken has been quickly washed and dried dust each piece with flour, place in the hot fat, and brown on all sides; add four teaspoonsfuls of flour to the brown fat and stir until well browned; add three cups of boiling water and stir until smooth; season with pepper, celery stalk, small piece of onion, a tiny piece of bay leaf; cover and place over simmering burner or on range, where it will cook just below the boiling point until tender. More hot water may be added and salt may be added the last twenty minutes of cooking. Dried, canned, or fresh mushrooms may be used; also one-half teaspoonful of curry powder and small bunch of parsley if desired.

Place on hot platter, strain brown sauce to remove pieces of vegetables, bay leaf, etc., used for flavoring. It is delicious served cold without the sauce.

BAKED DISHES.

Baked Navy Beans.—Wash clean as many beans as desired. Start to boiling in cold water, with salt to taste; boil slowly until tender; drain off all water. Put one tablespoonful of butter in baking pan, set on stove, and melt. Pour beans in pan. Pour four tablespoonsfuls catsup and two tablespoonsfuls brown sugar; stir till mixed through beans thoroughly; lay a few thin slices of onion over beans, sprinkle white pepper over them; lay thin slices of bacon on top; pour enough boiling water to cover. Set in oven and bake slowly for one hour.

Baked Spaghetti.—With cheese and tomatoes have water boiling enough to boil spaghetti tender; a little salt, break spaghetti in two inch pieces, put in water and boil slowly for thirty or forty minutes; drain and pour over enough fresh boiling water to cover spaghetti; let boil for twenty minutes, have in a moderate oven on the grate. Icing: One cup of pulverized sugar, two tablespoons of water or milk, beat well. When cold cut in squares. This will make four dozen, and they are fine.

USEFUL HINTS.

The teapot should be carefully dried after washing to keep it sweet.

After peeling onions wash your hands in mustard water to remove the smell.

To set dye in colored stockings, dissolve a handful of common salt in the washing water.

Before turning out a pudding let it stand three or four minutes for the steam to escape.

Dried tongues should be soaked in tepid water for at least twenty-four hours before cooking.

To test the freshness of eggs drop them slowly into a bowl of water, and if the small ends come up they are fresh.

Choose jugs for household use which are wide enough at the top to allow of a thorough cleaning with the hand or a cloth.

Old chintz covers make excellent dust sheets. The material is light and at the same time close enough to exclude the dust.

For obstinate stains of tea and coffee try applying a mixture of yolk of egg and glycerine in equal parts. Leave till dry and then wash out.

In mending lace curtains dampen a piece of net with thin starch, draw the rent carefully together, place the net over it and press dry with a warm iron.

Looking glasses should be kept perfectly bright by cleaning with a rag moistened with methylated spirit. This will remove fly marks and all other stains.

Gentlemen's silk ties may be cleaned by rubbing them with French chalk or magnesia, and holding them near a fire. The heat absorbs the grease. Brush well afterwards.

The smell of cigar smoke can soon be dispelled from a room. Put a few red hot coals on a shovel and then sprinkle some ground coffee over. The fumes will purify the room.

When boiling fish let the liquor (four ounces of salt to each gallon of water) boil for fifteen minutes before the fish is put in. Cook the fish very gently or it is apt to boil to pieces.

Black stockings will keep their color far better if they are carefully folded and mangled instead of being ironed.

Simple Measures—Four large tablespoonsfuls are equal to half a gill, one large wineglass holds a gill, one quart of flour is equal to a pound, a piece of butter the size of an egg equals two ounces.

Mahogany furniture that is neglected and dirty should be well washed with either hot beer or tea.

THE UNIVERSE

Consist in Finding and g God’s Purpose

ch to the one enemy to be hated with all one’s soul and to be fought unto one’s last breath.

6. His duty is to be brave. The basic sin of all sins is cowardice. The higher the realm of life in which we move the more dangerous is any kind of fear. And the most deadly of all fears is the fear of the truth, or the fear for the truth. Any man or institution that fights to preserve himself or itself, for the sake of “expediency,” that is to say, for fear the truth might do harm, any man or institution, in the words of Zangwill, that proposes to live and die in “an autocasm without facts,” is doomed.

7. His duty is to love. Although, according to the foregoing points in the creed, he is to develop self and be CLEAN, BRAVE, AND STRONG, yet he is to find his motive for all this and the end for which he does all this, outside and not inside of himself.

It is at this point that he rises, like an aeroplane leaving the runway on the ground and soaring aloft; here the man leaves the company and similitude of all other creatures. In his power to be actuated by unselfish motives he becomes as a god compared to the beasts.

He lives for his wife, his children, his friends, his country, his race; so, in widening waves his radio-dynamic flows. The good man therefore hates no living creature. He despises no human being.

In him is a centrifugal power out flowing to inundate the universe.

8. From this love arise all graces and virtues as naturally as peaches grow from peach trees. Loving all he cannot soil a soul, nor wrong a fellow being, nor hurt wantonly, nor usurp, nor push for precedence, nor be unkind, nor in any way drift into the low, poison life of egoism.

9. His one aim, last of all, is to serve. Strong in himself, fearless and loving, he arises at length to the platform where stands he who was called “the first born among many brethren.” He is the master’s companion and also can put away all cheap success, all luxuries of greed and dominance, and repeat his master’s words:

“...him who would be greatest

“In short, investigation has gone a long way to prove that the disease, when present, is almost certainly acquired, and therefore will ultimately probably be found to be to a large extent avoidable.

“The result of ten years work, not only in England but in all other countries in which there are centres of cancer, is that

A MORE HOPEFUL OUTLOOK obtains in regard to the cancer problem than at any time in the history of medicine.

“Not the least significant thing in the again awakening hope has been the demonstration of the fact, so long disputed in the case of man, that animals suffering from cancer can and do cure themselves of the disease.

“The immediate object of experiments is of course the unravelling of the mechanism by which animals are enabled to do this, and although an immediate solution is not in sight it ought not to be beyond human endeavor to elucidate the means by which animals cure themselves, and to apply the results to the treatment of the disease in man.”

“Gaston Prat, the discoverer of the hot air cure for cancer and tuberculosis, is so confident of the efficacy of his methods that he offers to go to London and in the presence of a commission of English physicians at any of the London hospitals, including the Cancer Research Fund Institute, to apply his treatment to any patients selected.

Dr. Francis Marre, in an article published in a recent issue of the Paris Eclair, described cures obtained by M. Prat’s hot air treatment and explained the method of its application.

M. Prat invented in 1890 an apparatus which permitted him to project into the cavity of decayed teeth douches of hot and dry air under pressure. The air could be raised to high temperatures, 80, 100, 200, 500 degrees centigrade, if not even more. The results obtained in the restricted province of dentistry attracted the attention of Prof. Ollier, who called M. Prat into his service and, in 1892, caused him to make applications of hot air to a patient in the ward of St. Sacerdos. It was a case of tuberculous arthritis of the foot. The hot air

PERFORMED WONDERS and the patient escaped the amputation with which he was threatened.

Prof. Ollier continued to make experiments with the process, to which he gave the name, “aeropiezotherapie.” It was found beneficial with a number of afflictions, including arthritis of any kind, rheumatic pains, lumbago, nervous complaints and cutaneous lesions.

“On fungoid growths and on malignant proliferations,” said Dr. Marre, “the high temperature gush brings about the destruction of the affected cellules while it increases the vitality of sound cellules. Its use has really produced astonishing cures, and the disappearance of tumors of a cancerous nature, affirmed by the best qualified clinic doctors and verified by microscopic examination may be held as certain.

“This is to say that the douche of hot air deserves the greatest confidence, as it has given results absolutely uncontested. There are numerous cases of tuberculous affections and of various cutaneous lesions which it has caused to disappear of articular troubles which

PIE.

Carrot Pie.—One heaping tablespoonful grated carrot, one heaping tablespoonful flour, one-half cup sugar, yolks of two eggs, saving whites for the top; a little dust of nutmeg, one cup of milk, also a piece of butter the size of a walnut. Cook on top of stove to fill piecrust, then beat the white and brown in oven.

Cherry Custard Pie.—One heaping tablespoonful of our, two heaping tablespoons of sugar, the yolk of two eggs, pint of sweet milk. Cover a deep pie pan with rich crust; into this put one layer of stoned cherries, dust with sugar, and pour custard over the fruit. Beat the whites of eggs to a stiff froth, add a little sugar, spread over the pie when the custard is done; drop a few cherries on top, return to the oven and brown.

DATES.

Date Cookies.—One cup butter, two cups sugar, one cup sweet milk, three eggs dropped in one at a time, one pound dates chopped, 5 cents’ worth English walnuts, three teaspoons baking powder, four cups flour, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon cloves, one-half teaspoon nutmeg. Cream sugar and butter; add eggs one at a time and beat; add milk, then spices, then add dates and nuts, then flour with the baking powder. These cookies will keep months.

Date Suggestion.—If before stoning and cutting dates a little warm water is poured over them, the dates will separate and one will find they are not sticky and hard to handle as before.

SMALL CAKES.

Soft Sugar Cookies.—Two cups of sugar, one cup of butter, two eggs, one cup of buttermilk, one level teaspoon of soda, seven cups of flour, one teaspoon of baking powder, a little nutmeg. Roll and cut with a cookie cutter and bake in a hot oven on top of the grate.

Frosted Cream.—One and one-half cups of New Orleans molasses, one-half cup of sugar, one tablespoon of ginger, pinch of salt, two-thirds cup of hot lard, two-thirds cup of boiling water, one level tablespoon of soda, six cups of sifted flour. Bake in dripping pan, roll with floured tumbler. Bake

QUEEN MARY’S TASTES.

Her Fund of General Information is Remarkable.

Queen Mary is before all else a perfect wife and mother. But it strikes one that perhaps too much stress has been laid on her domesticity. At least scant mention seems to be made of many of her other characteristics, says the Queen.

The Queen’s education was wide and deep and her fund of general information is remarkable. She has always been a great reader and books of travel, history and biography are seldom missed. In fact, few ladies have a better knowledge of English literature. Then like most royalties the Queen is a first rate linguist and speaks and writes several languages with ease and fluency.

Queen Mary in her early days rode well and Princess Mary inherits this taste and has become a fine horsewoman. But her Majesty never went with the hounds and is now seldom seen on horseback. Nor does she shoot, fish or play golf or tennis like several of her royal relations. And yachting for yachting’s sake is by no means among the Queen’s favorite amusements.

In fact she cares little for the more daring sports and games, but will sometimes play croquet and often goes for long walks with her children and a lady in attendance. And she dances extremely well and with evident enjoyment.

WHALES IN A QUARREL.

A remarkable incident has taken place on the coast of Perkins Island (North Tasmania), no fewer than thirty-seven monster whales having been stranded there. The whales, among which there was only one cow, quarrelled, and in chasing the female entered the shallows. All attempted to jump backward into deep water, only to fail in every effort. As the tide receded the huge animals were left floundering on the sands, in which they half buried themselves in their struggles. Unable to help themselves they perished in a short time.

A number of persons who saw the spectacle formed a syndicate with a capital of $1,500 to recover the ambergris from the carcasses. They have already obtained 3,000 pounds of the valuable commodity.

INSURANCE FOR WORKERS

Lloyd-George's Measure Compelling Protection for Certain Laboring Classes

A despatch from London says: David Lloyd-George, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, on Thursday introduced the long-promised plan of State insurance against unemployment, sickness and invalidity. Every worker whose annual earnings fall below the income tax level of £160 (approximately $800) will be compulsorily insured against illness so as to assure him the receipt of five shillings per week during his incapacity. Toward this the worker would contribute about one-half, the same being deducted from his wages, while the balance would be paid jointly by his employers and the State. The weekly assessment against the insured would be eight cents in the case of a man and six cents for a woman, representing, as the Chancellor put it, "two pints of ale or one ounce of tobacco." Every one in the class mentioned between the ages of 16 and 65 is included in the plan. The employers would pay six cents weekly for every employee and the Government contribute four cents for each of the insured.

Mr. Lloyd-George estimated that his plan would affect 14,700,000 men and women. Provision is made whereby women will receive thirty shillings in maternity cases on condition that they do not work for a month following child birth, and for free medical attendance for every contributor.

The state would also help in the crusade against consumption providing 87,500,000 to aid local authorities in building sanitaria and 85,000,000 towards their maintenance.

Although in cases of permanent disability the sick allowance would be five shillings weekly, ten shillings would be allowed for the first three months in the case of men and seven shillings six pence in the case of women.

Those who can be shown to have invited incapacity would receive no insurance, though any necessary medical treatment would be provided.

COURT MOURNING ENDED.

This Week Sees Opening of London Season's Festivities.

A despatch from London says: The period of mourning at Court being at an end, mourning was discarded on Sunday, and there will be an advent of brilliant costumes at this week's balls and dinners. The season's festivities have already commenced, and debutantes are rushing to luncheons, to dinners, to balls, and to bed just before dawn.

King George, Queen Mary, Queen Alexandra, the Prince of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, and other members of the Royal Family attended a memorial service at Windsor on Saturday, on the first anniversary of the death of King Edward. Many friends of the late King were present and a great many wreaths were sent to the chapel. The Archbishop of Canterbury conducted the services.

Jury and repairs are likely to be long and costly. The Invincible has given continual trouble ever since she was put in commission. Her guns have not been fired for more than a year, owing to difficulties with the electricity operated barbette.

YOUTH DIES FROM LOCKJAW.

Allan J. Latham's Knee Grazed With Rifle Bullet.

A despatch from Brockville says: Allan J. Latham, fourteen years old, son of Robert Latham of Sherwood Springs, was shooting fish two weeks ago, when the bullet from a rifle grazed his left knee, causing a slight scratch. Nothing was thought of the injury until Saturday, when lockjaw developed, and death ensued on Wednesday night. The deceased had been assisting in planting a garden after sustaining the scratch.

HARBOR ON JAMES BAY.

Explorers to be Sent Out by T. & N. O. Commission.

A despatch from Toronto says: The Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway Commission is to send out a party this summer to explore the Moose River country, sloping from the height of land to James Bay, and report on its possibilities. A special examination will be made of the physical features of the shores of James Bay and a suitable location for a harbor will be sought, with the view to the ultimate extension of the Government line to James Bay. Rich iron ore deposits are to be found at the Grand Rapids on the Matagami, to which point the railway is to be extended at an early date. It is stated that a total of more than two million horse-power is capable of development on the rivers of the James Bay slope, which will prove very valuable for electrical power enterprises.

Further inquiry showed that a sailor on the Frontenac had seen a young man throw himself into the river on Friday, and that the man had been swept away in the swift current. Durocher's father said that the young man had been drinking heavily and had left the house in a passion at noon on Friday, threatening to drown himself.

East of here, between Tache and Ignace, and four miles from the latter point, a fire is raging, and there are also fires in some portions of the country very close to the main line of the C.P.R. When the police finally forced their way into the house by a rear entrance they found Belleau had collapsed, and was lying in a drunken stupor on the floor. Although suffering from influenza and advised by his doctor to stay at home, Mr. Shewan started out for school as usual about 8.30 o'clock. He was taken from the car to the police station on Ontario street, but was beyond human aid by the time he was carried into the building.

SHORT-WEIGHT CHEESE.

Inspector at Glasgow Reports Serious Losses.

A despatch from Ottawa says: Dealing with the question of cheese imported into Scotland, James A. Findland, inspector at Glasgow, reports: "There is still a depressing feature of the Canadian cheese trade, in respect that the accuracy of marked weights cannot be relied on, and importers find it essential to test thoroughly the weights of each shipment for shortage, particularly during the summer months. It is a serious matter to importers, who have contracted to take a factory's weekly output, to find the cheese arrive showing from one-half to two and three pounds short weight per box, not to speak of odd boxes turning up five to ten pounds lighter than the marked weight, which, viewed in the most favorable light, can only be considered gross carelessness. Importations into Glasgow of Canadian cheese last year fell off 35,000 boxes. It is attributable to a heavier output of Scotch cheese, and also to the strike making many idle. Butter importations from Canada to Glasgow are also decreasing on account of the high price of the Canadian article."

McNAMARA'S TRIAL.

Iron Workers' Secretary-Treasurer Will be Arraigned June 1.

A despatch from Los Angeles, Cal., says: John J. McNamara, secretary and treasurer of the International Bridge and Structural Iron Workers' Association and his brother, James B. RUSHING IN IMMIGRANTS

Inspector Lawrence Secures Many Convictions at Cloverdale, B. C.

A despatch from Vancouver, B.C., says: Two weeks ago the Canadian Immigration Inspector, H. G. Lawrence, who has but recently been appointed, instituted a special effort to stamp out the wholesale railroading of undesirable foreign immigrants across the international boundary in the Blaine district. Here are a few figures of the results during a fortnight. One hundred and fifty persons were arrested, brought before the Magistrate at Cloverdale, and fined amounts varying from $10 to $50, and then ordered to be deported. Two of the alleged ringleaders, who are said to have charged from $2 to $5 for each man piloted across the border line, are now in jail at New Westminster, and two hundred persons were turned back at the boundary, being refused admission, but were not placed under arrest. The intending immigrants were mostly Russians, Greeks and Italians.

IRISH EMIGRATION.

32,457 Natives Left Last Year, and Over 4,000,000 Since 1851.

$8,000 FIRE AT LINDSAY.

Baker Lumber Company's Yards Badly Gutted.

A despatch from Lindsay says: A somewhat serious fire occurred at the Baker Lumber Company's yard in the east ward at about 5.30 Saturday evening, by which over a quarter of a million feet of beech and hemlock lumber and half a million shingles were destroyed. A G.T.R. car, filled with shingles, was also destroyed. The fire, which is supposed to have started from a spark from a passing steamer, proved a stubborn one to fight, and although under control during the night, the firemen were not released until four o'clock Sunday morning. The loss is roughly estimated at about $8,000.

QUEEN GETS HER NECKLACE.

$50,000 Ornament Left in Lisbon Palace is Returned.

A despatch from Lisbon, Portugal, says: The Seculon, one of the best informed newspapers of Lisbon, reports that the superintendent of Royal palaces has returned to Dowager Queen Maria Pia a magnificent diamond necklace, valued at more than $50,000, which she had left behind in the Ajuda Palace in her flight. The necklace was a present from the King of Italy. The most advanced Republican newspapers attack the Government for having returned the jewels and personal effects of the exiled Royal Family. The Government, however, states that it could not keep private documents, correspondence, and the personal property of members of the dethroned Royal Family.

REVENUE SOARING.

Increase in April Customs of Over Half a Million.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

A despatch from Toronto says: In a letter to Rev. R. P. McKay, secretary of the Presbyterian Foreign Missions, Miss A. Bostick, missionary in China, gives an account of the conditions in China at the present time.

"Wheat bran now sells for what was ordinarily considered the high price for good flour," she states, "and dried potato leaves find a ready sale. Dry, hard cakes made from the sesame seeds that have all the oil pressed from them, now form common articles of food. Those who eat it find themselves burning with fierce inward fevers, and being unable to buy tea, drink freely of cold unboiled water, which very often results in death. Little children are still being sold from door to door, as common articles of merchandise. Most of the dead poor are just wrapped in matting and buried in trenches, where the dogs can get at them."

Dr. Donald McGillicuddy writes that the plague is abating, but vigilance is still necessary.

$3,600 in Cash Prizes for Farmers

ARE you going to build that new horseblock, sidewalk or dairy house of cement? Then insist on your dealer supplying you with the "CANADA" Cement. Not only will this ensure your getting a pure, uniform and strictly high-grade cement, that will guarantee the lifelong permanency of the thing you build, but it will also entitle you to enter our Prize Contest. And in this contest you stand a good chance of winning a prize that will perhaps more than pay you for the cost of the work. Every farmer in Canada who uses "CANADA" Cement is eligible to compete. Four prizes will be awarded in each Province and these prizes will be divided as follows:

PRIZE "A"—$100.00 to be given to the farmer in each Province who will use during 1911 the greatest number of barrels of "CANADA" Cement.

PRIZE "B"—$100.00 to be given to the farmer in each Province who uses "CANADA" Cement on his farm in 1911 for the greatest number of purposes.

PRIZE "C"—$100.00 to be given to the farmer in each Province who furnishes us with the photograph showing the best and any particular kind of work done on his farm during 1911 with "CANADA" Cement.

PRIZE "D"—$100.00 to be given to the farmer in each Province who submits the best and most complete description, of how any particular piece of work shown by photograph sent in, was done.

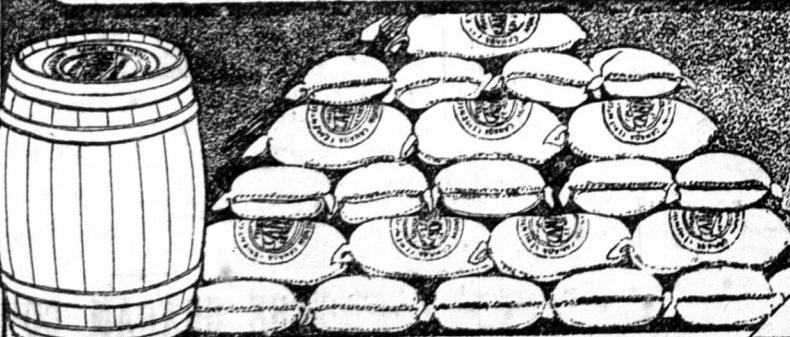

Notice how we have purposely planned and imposed certain necessary conditions in order to give large and small users of cement an equal opportunity.

As an illustration of this, in prizes "C" and "D," the quantity of cement used has no bearing whatever on the result. The farmer who sends us the best photograph of as small a thing as a watering trough or a gate post, has as much chance for prize "C" as a man who sends a photograph of a house—and the same applies to prize "D."

Don't hold back from entering because you think you don't know anything about concrete work. It's very simple. Besides, we have a 180-page book that we will send you free on request, which tells you all about concrete and how to make and use it. In this book, you'll find complete instructions for the making of almost everything you can think of in the way of farm utilities, floors, vats, troughs, stairs, posts, etc.

This free book—entitled "What the Farmer Can Do With Concrete"—will not only inform you—it will also greatly interest you. So send for it anyway, whether you intend to try for one of the prizes or not.

A VERY FEASABLE SUGGESTION.

"I am quite aware that from one motive or another a great deal of effort and money has been spent in sending circulars to farmers to convince them that this Canadian treaty, if adopted, will do them injury. I do not know that it is possible to allay such fears by argument, pending the consideration of the treaty by the senate. But there is one way—and that a conclusive way—of demonstrating the fallacious and unfounded character of all such fears, and that is to try it. There is no obligation on either nation to continue the reciprocity arrangement any longer than it desires, and if it be found by actual practice that there is a permanent injury to the farmers everybody knows that they can sufficiently control legislation to bring about a return to the old conditions. Those of us who are responsible for the Canadian treaty are willing and anxious to subject it to that kind of a test."—President Taft.

Children's Aid Concert.

The Ladies' Musical Club, on Wednesday evening, gave a benefit concert in the opera house, for the Children's Aid Society. Besides local talent Mr. Hollingshead, Toronto, delighted the audience with his excellently rendered numbers. Miss Reid, of Kingston, also rendered her numbers splendidly. Little Miss Shibley Boyes fairly captured the hearts of the audience with her instrumental numbers which were enthusiastically endorsed.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

THE PRIVATE SECRETARY."

(The Globe, March 28th, 1911.)

The Princess Theatre last night was the scene of unusual merriment, laughter at times bordering on hysteria. The occasion was the presentation of "The Private Secretary." Freedom, eloquence and decision of gesture are qualities which, in comedian, seldom fail to create the intended impression, and C. James Bancroft, the noted English artist of eccentric comedy, was not lax in these qualities during the three acts of the performance last night. He played the role of Rev. Robert Spaulding, a parson of set ways and exclusive manner. From the beginning of the play to the end he was in a state of bewilderment, and as an unsuspecting clergyman who was at all times embarrassed, he kept his audience wondering what he would do next. Alexander Frank and Ernest Cossard, as a rich old uncle and an ambitious tailor, formed along with the innocent parson, a most interesting trio. Suzanne Crocker and Marie Edith Rice are also subjects of laughter in their parts as elderly ladies with decided views. The latter as Miss Ashford, an ardent student of spiritualism, won great favor with the audience. Always facile, interesting and intelligent, the ease and grace of her acting lent a dignity and charm to the play. There are twelve artists in the company, and all do their parts with credit. There is nothing extraordinary or new about the scenic effects, but this is not noticed where comedy is so rich, and where always the unexpected happens, keeping interest at a high pitch. The plot is clever and decidedly well chosen. Brisco opera house, May 17th. Prices 25¢, 50¢, 75¢, $1.00.

Mrs. John Herrington met with a serious accident this week. She was drawing a pail of water with a Windlass pump. Her finger caught in the chain which crushed it so badly that it had to be amputated.

Miss Hazel Miller, granddaughter of James L. Miller, of Switzerville, was taken to Kingston last week for an operation for appendicitis. The operation was performed and the patient is slowly improving, although at first grave fears were expressed for her recovery.

WORKED TOO HARD.

Why David Graham Phillips Once Lost a Situation.

People who thought that the late David Graham Phillips had a rapid, fluent and even at times overhasty pen were very far from the truth, says a writer in the Bookman. Mr. Phillips himself admitted freely that from first to last he always found literary composition a labor—a labor of love that he could not have shirked if he would, but none the less a labor.

A story which he sometimes told at his own expense illustrates this. It was shortly after his graduation from Princeton that he sought work as a reporter and finally by offering his services for nothing obtained a chance to show what he could do on the leading daily in a western city.

The weather was cold and the temperature of the office somewhere below 60 degrees, yet hour after hour Mr. Phillips would sit at his desk with the moisture rolling from his brow in the anguish of trying to make literature from such material as "Yesterday afternoon John Jones fell off a stepladder and dislocated his shoulder."

One day—it was the tenth of Mr. Phillips' services—the presiding genius of the paper happened to pass through the city room and stood for some minutes watching him.

"Who is that young man?" he presently asked the city editor.

The latter explained.

"Get rid of him!" came the curt edict.

"But," expostulated the city editor, "we are getting him for nothing."

"I don't care," rejoined the higher power. "I don't care if he is paying for the privilege. Get rid of him at once. I can't bear to see any human being work so hard."

Snubbed the Czar.

Paderewski once dared to affront the czar, with the result that he soon received a note commanding him to leave St. Petersburg, where he had been booked for a number of concerts, within twenty-four hours. The czar had sent for him and paid him a neat compliment, but said to have received Warning Before Command.

In bringing up my children I found that at night when they were tired they were spared many tears by being warned before I gave them a strict command. Instead of saying "Now it is time to go to bed. Put away your blocks at once," I would say, "It is nearly time to go to bed. Finish your house first and then put away your blocks." In this way the children were fully prepared to go, and there was consequently no begging and no temptation for me to show my lack of firmness by being persuaded to allow them to build "just one more house."

Imagine a mother in the midst of an absorbing chapter being told by one in higher authority to put down her book at once and go to bed. Would it not save a frown of impatience to be told to finish the chapter first?—Harper's Bazaar.

A Curiosity of Sound.

If when riding in a balloon at a height, say, of 2,000 feet a charge of gunpowder be fired electrically 100 feet below the car, the report, though really as loud as a cannon, sounds no more than a pistol shot, possibly partly owing to the greater rarity of the air, but chiefly because the sound, having no background to reflect it, simply spends itself in the air. Then, always and under all conditions of atmosphere, there ensues absolute silence until the time for the echo back from earth has fully elapsed, when a deafening outburst of thunder rises from below, rolling on often for more than half a minute.

Impartial.

Professor C. Alphonso Smith once wrote an English grammar. The book was published while Dr. Smith was teaching at the University of North Carolina. One day he received from a farmer a letter containing the following:

"I am glad somebody has written an impartial grammar at last."

Dr. Smith immediately wrote to the farmer asking what he meant by an "impartial grammar." The answer was:

"You give the children this sentence to parse: 'One Confederate killed ten Yankees.'—New York Post

Where Honesty Failed.

"You are still having trouble in your search for an honest man?"

FEEDING BRAINS

Why Studious Children Always Crave Oatmeal

Nature gives oats more organic phosphorus than to any other grain she grows. And phosphorus is the brain's main constituent. Brains can't grow, brains can't work without it.

Oats also contain more lecithin—the nerve food—than any other grain. They form our greatest energy food.

That's why growing children love oatmeal. Some instinct within them calls for these elements, and woe to the child who doesn't get all it wants.

The right oats for food are the rich, plump grains. In the choicest oats there are but ten pounds to the bushel. In making Quaker Oats these choice grains are selected by 62 separate siftings.

Quaker Oats—just the cream of the oats—costs but one-half cent per dish. One dish is worth two dishes of common oatmeal. Don't you think it would pay to serve your children such oats?
